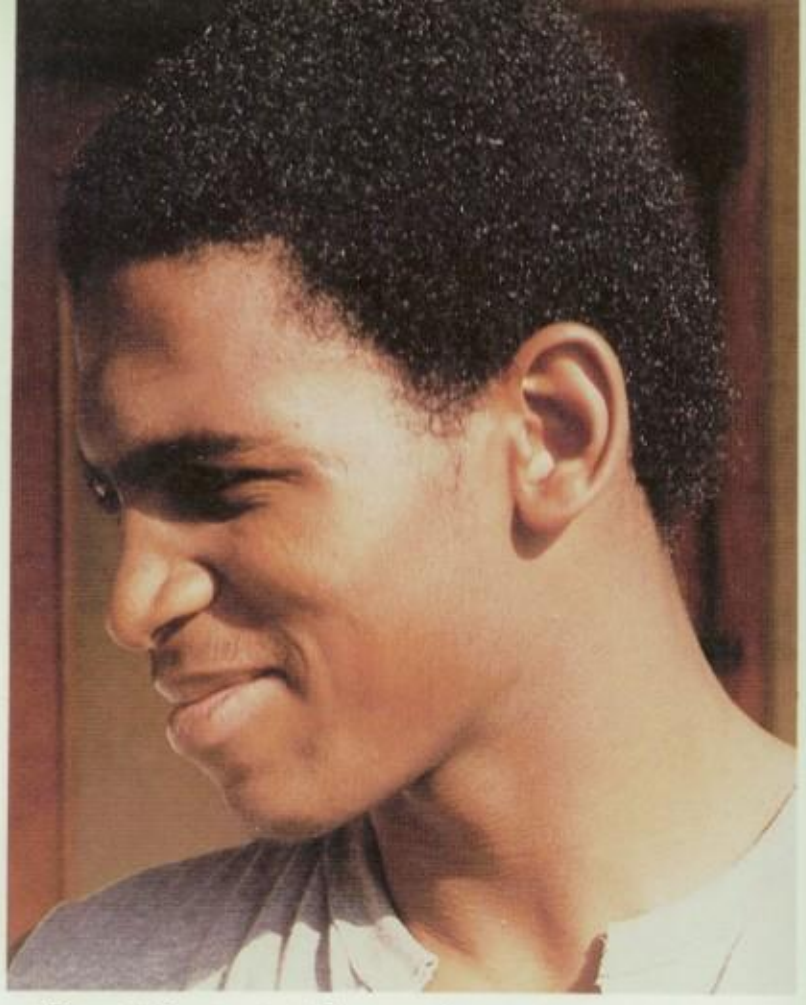
"A Family Album"

What makes up a family? Biological bonds are not enough to make up a real family. It takes more, much more- time spent together, a shared purpose, supporting one another in times of difficulty, sharing the laughter and joy of life, and most importantly, loving one another. At it's best, Serra fulfills these requirements. Anyone who has shared a Serra victory, been on a Serra Search, or lived through the days surrounding the death of Stevan Williams, knows that Serra can be a genuine family.

The Serra family is defined by it's unity, but also by it's diversity. Each picture that one looks at in this yearbook captures a personality that cannot be duplicated, a personality that bears the likeness of He who brought forth life. The Serra family is only complete when the quiet student is viewed alongside the outspoken, when the spectator accompanies the athlete.

Student Life

"Serra isn't a coed school?'



Darryl May out of dress code.

A school is far more than classes, a sports program and studying. In fact, when a senior reflects back over four years most of the classes fade into a blurr, each individual game blends into one long effort, and the endless hours spent studying are all but forgotten. When remains eched in our memory are the people we have come to know, the teacher who believed in us, the brother who offered real wisdom, and most importantly the fellow student who has become a cherished friend.

Each student has his own memories that will mean "high school" for the rest of his life. Maybe it was the class where an "A" seemed a theoretical impossibility, or your performance determined whether the game was won or lost. Or maybe the most vivid memory is the time spent riding the RTD bus every morning and afternoon. Whatever the memory, they will be with us always.

Participation Makes

Activities are a vital part of life at Serra High School. Who could imagine what it would be like without the game on Friday evening, the excitement of the rallys, the joy of a lady-friend visiting from a nearby campus, or just the good feeling that you get from being around your friends? What it all leads up to is something which is at least as important as the academic aspect of High School. That is, dealing with and getting along with people on a day-to-day basis.

When you look back over the years, academics are not the first thing to pop into mind. No, the memories are more often than not found in your participation in the various goings-on and the happenings around campus. It is a joy in seeing a friend 5 years later and asking, "Do you remember that time at the game when . . ." It is our degree of activity, not we will look back on our high school years as favorable or disfavorable.

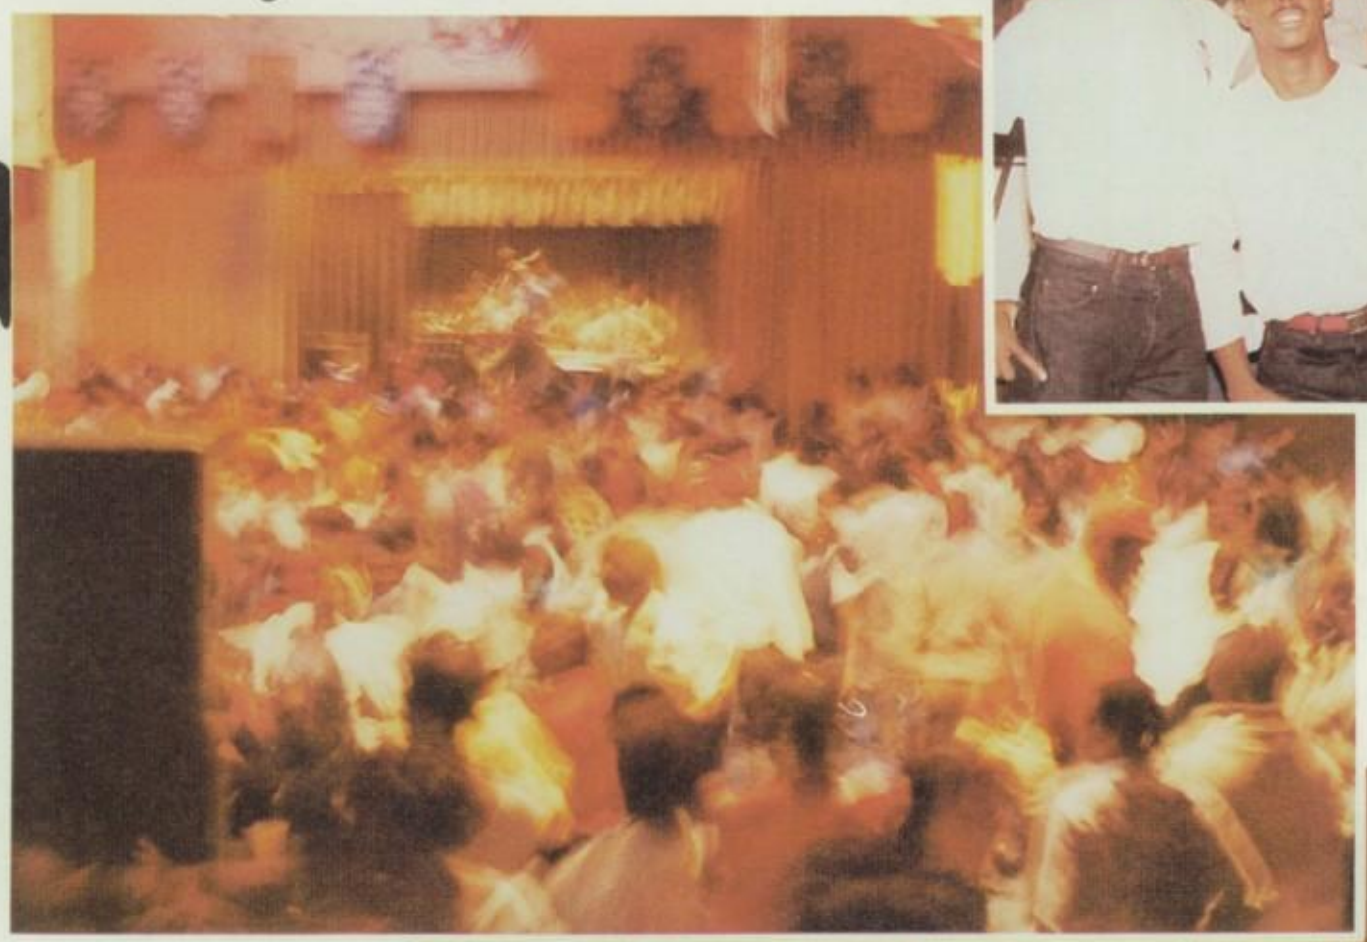
Serra Dances . . .
A Family Celebration



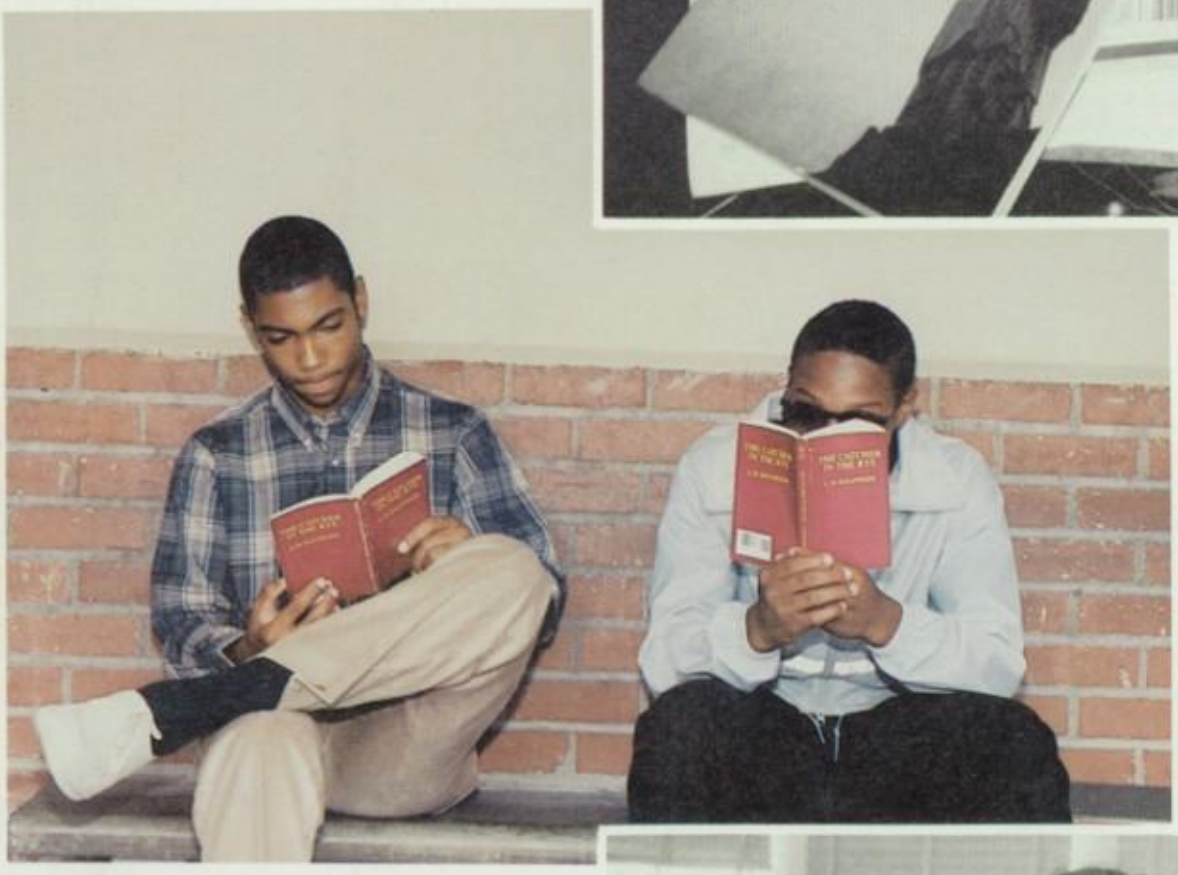
Serra students believe in working hard and playing equally hard. Once a month "to play" means to make sure you're at a Serra Dance. "Boogie", "Jam", "Whatever-A-Thon"- it's all the same, spending a night in a crowded gym, listening to (and feeling) the music, and hoping that an attractive, intelligent young lady has a good sense to accompany you onto the dance floor.

Derrick Knight looking less than amused.

Lani Palelei lost another one.

Academics . . . Serra's First Priority

There is a "bottom line" at Serra, and it is academics. As a college preparatory school, from the very first orientation assembly as freshmen to the last official event- graduation, academic excellence has been the challenge presented to every student.



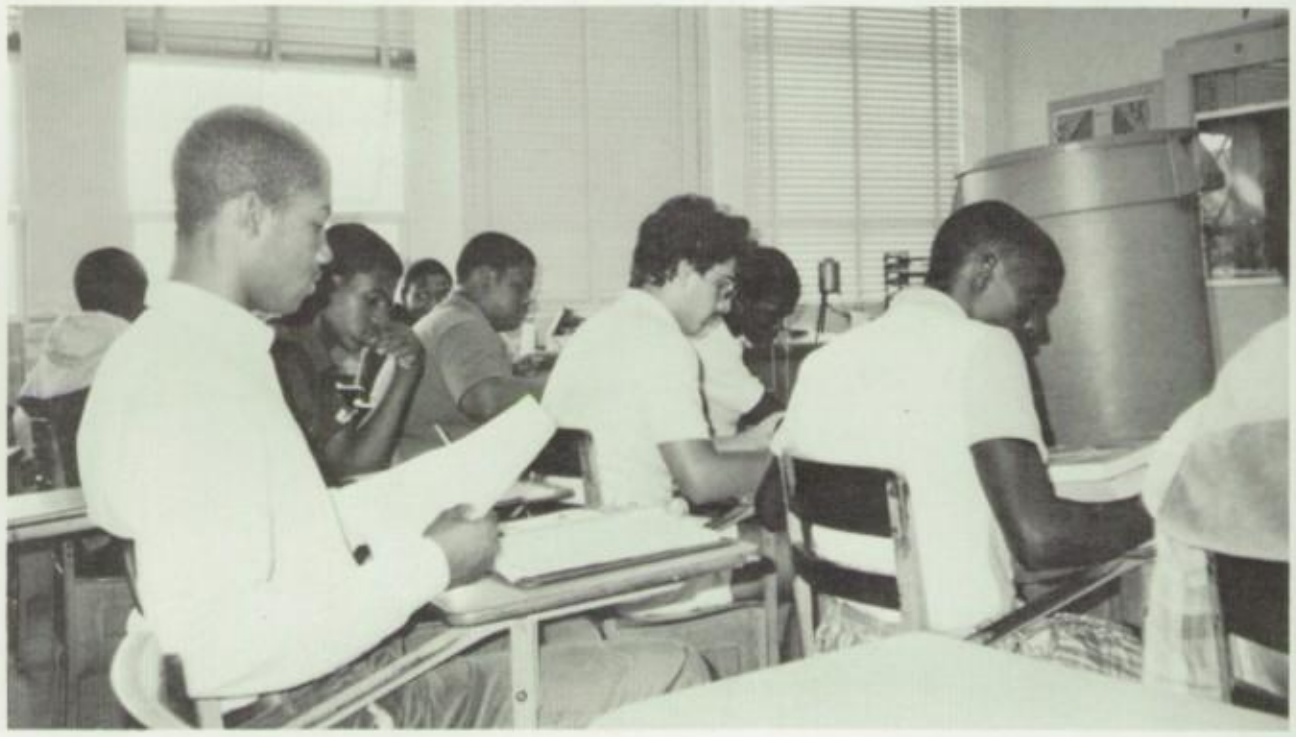
"Gin, jazz and dreams were not enough. Because damn it, there's the mind, the mind. It wouldn't let me rest."

Ralph Ellison

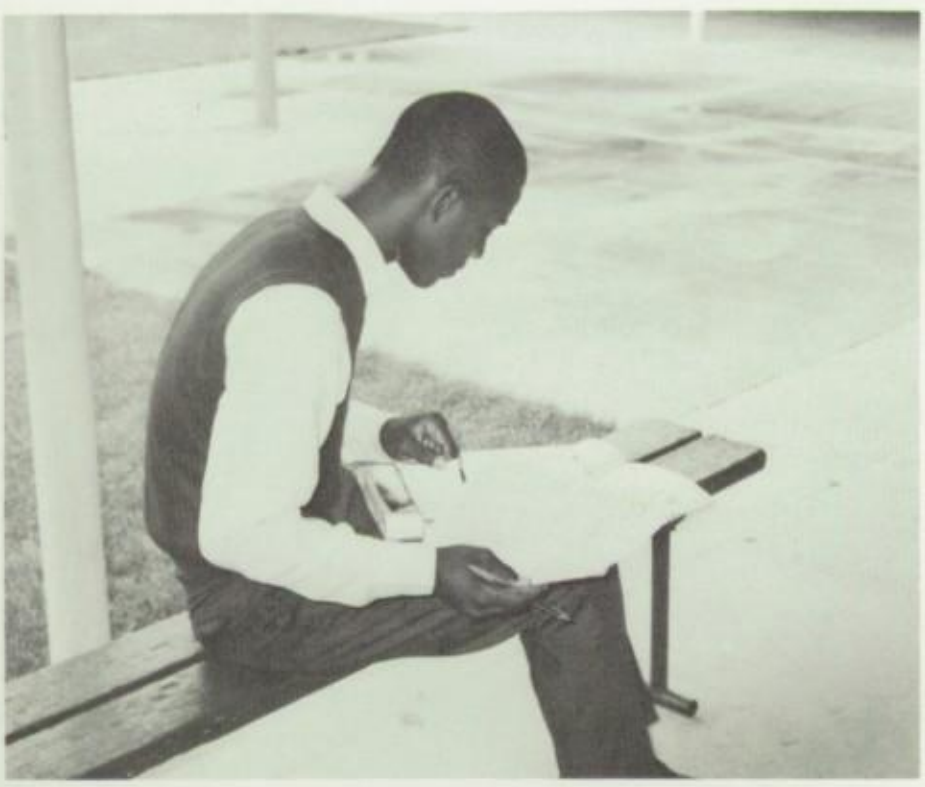
Seniors eager to go to class.

Steven Williams ... the picture of concentration.

Every year when we returned from summer, we noticed that our division was missing a few people. Nothing had to be said, we all knew that they had failed to make the grade- literally. We regretted that they were gone, but we also felt a little proud that we worked hard enough to be part of an ever more exclusive group.



Whose paper will end up in the trash can?



Kenneth Johnson is after that illusive "A".

Making academic achievement the first priority can make life difficult, but few students fail to understand that the lost sleep, the crumpled rough drafts, the endless memorization are essential if we are to succeed beyond high school. For while age finally reduces our physical strength, a well developed mind does not deteriorate. We take from Serra many things, and one of the most valued gifts is an able mind.

Anthony Davis looking like quite the professional.

Much is said of the Serra Man. We think of maturity. Academically the mature students works hard not because he fears the deficiency notices, but because he realizes that of all the things that defeat men, nothing is more devastating than ignorance.

Serra's Reunion-Homecoming 1984

The crowning

The court

This year's Homecoming Queen, Jame Williams cried in joy as she was crowned the 1984-85 Homecoming Queen. Jame clearly exemplifies the quality of a Homecoming Queen by her loyalty and constant involvement with Serra. It makes the family of Serra proud to have a Homecoming Queen of Jame's quality.

The quality of fine women involved with Serra does not end with the Queen. It goes on into princesses as well. Teri Tillman, Lawanda Gear and Jeannine Thomas, three beautiful young ladies who are fine examples of the quality that is exhibited at Serra. It is unfortunate though, that only one young lady can be crowned the Homecoming Queen.

The Homecoming Court

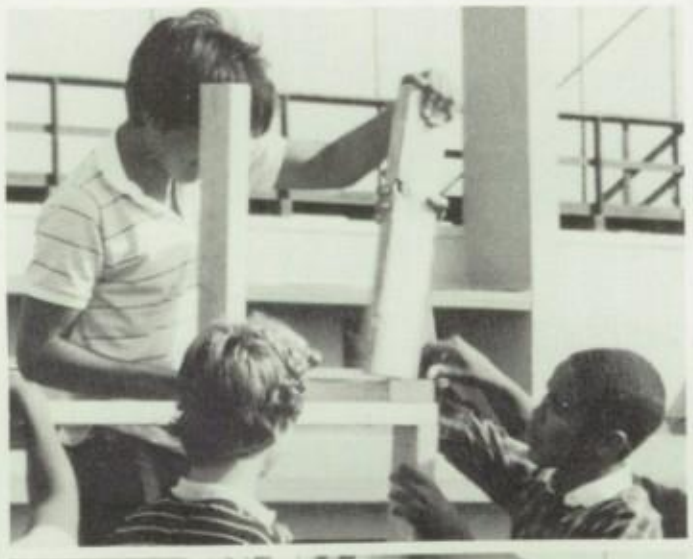
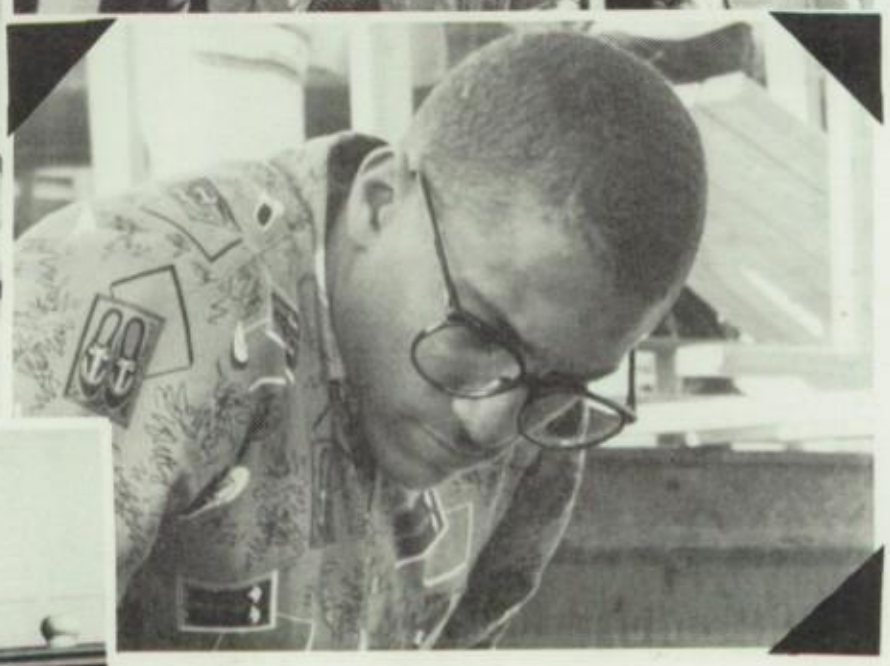
"A Night To Be Proud Of, A Night To Remember."

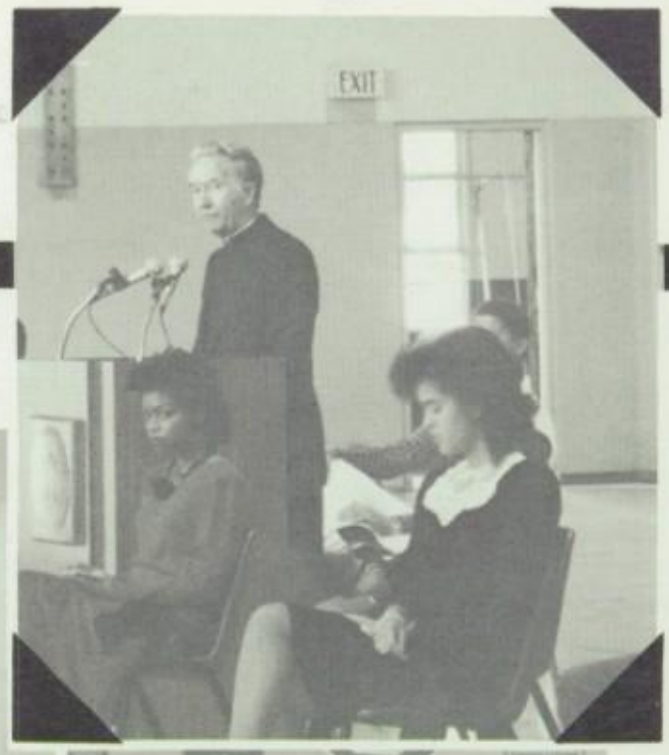
Each couple glowed with anticipation and joy as they rode on their respective floats. As each couple stepped off their floats, it was clearly seen that each was truly enjoying themselves and savoring every moment. Princess Teri Tillman and her escort Charles Shoals (middle right). Princess Jeaninine Thomas and her escort Darryl May (bottom).

A Week In Preparation

Dedication and pride were exhibited during Homecoming Week. Young men from each division worked diligently at showing the creativity of their class by coming after school to work on their floats. Even the teachers got into the act.

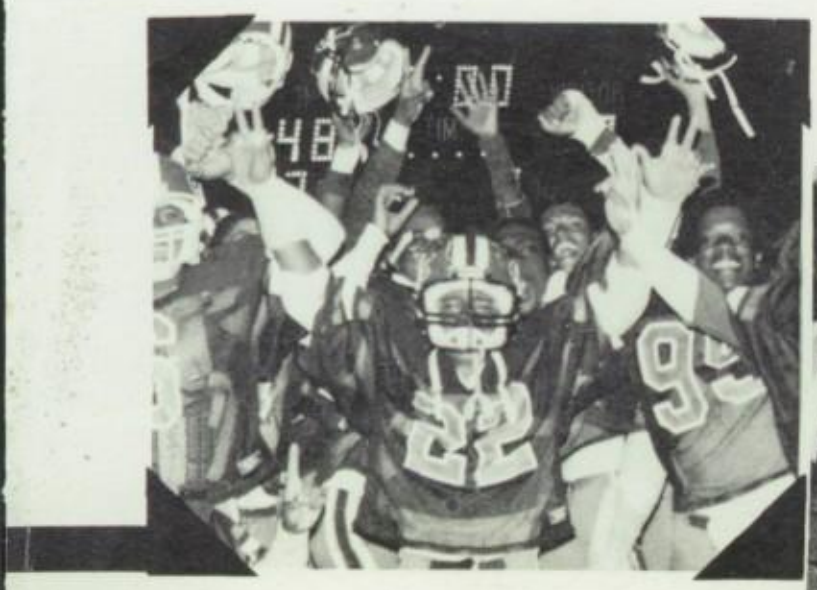






Though there was much work done by the students, there was work done by the candidates as well, as they prepared their speeches. But work was not the only thing involved in the Homecoming. Fun played an important role as can be seen in the rally where the student body laughed and cheered as a few of our brothers dressed as candidates for Homecoming Queen.

The Homecoming Week ended with a bang. The football team blew St. Anthony out of the stadium, and the team and every Serra fan cheered during the victory. The fans also cheered as the floats made their way around the field and as Jame Williams was crowned Homecoming Queen. But we must not forget the emcee, Derek Honore, and the escorts because they were there when the princesses needed them. Although the family reunion has ended, we always have next year's reunion to look forward to.



What Makes Serra Shine . . .

It is often said that a church is it's people. The same holds true for a school, especially Serra. While some schools stake their reputation on their facilities, or their team's win-loss record, Serra asserts to be the best because those who work and study here genuinely care about each other. And really in the end, isn't that what matters most?

The warmth, comradeship and shared purpose are not only seen but felt by anyone who comes to Serra. When the test papers are handed out, the glances across the room between students speak for themselves, "I hope you do well." When the score isn't in Serra's favor, the stands are filled with loyal fans who do not conceal their nervous determination to turn the tables.

People Who Care

Serra can definitely be considered a multi-dimensional school. The family as well as individuals make Serra what it truly is.

Many times Serra gathered in the morning to celebrate victories in their athletics, but Serra was definitely much more. We were taught by our elders and we dreamt too.

Serra Search

Shawn Boykin

Throughout his four years of high school Shawn Boykin has been an active and contributing member of the Serra Family. His sense of dedication and commitment have served him well in the areas of academic, athletic, and extra-curricular activities.

During his Sophomore and Junior years Shawn was a member of the Varsity Baseball Team. He was also a member of the Championship J.V. Basketball Team. This year, his senior year Shawn has been an active member of the Yearbook staff.

Shawn is probably best known for the leadership he has given to the Serra Search Program. Throughout his career at Serra High School Shawn has been an active member of the Serra Search program. This year, he served as President of the Search Board and as Director of the opening two retreats of the year. One and know that if you ask Shawn for help or for a service that is all you need to do, for Shawn takes it from there and you can count on it being done and done well.

The Search Program structures itself around a treefold experience of life, that is — a particular person lives out their life in relation to God, others, and their own self.

The heart and mind of the Search program is the Search Board. This year the Board was staffed by seven members of the Senior Class. Serving as officers of the Board were:

Fr. Mark Neary S.M.

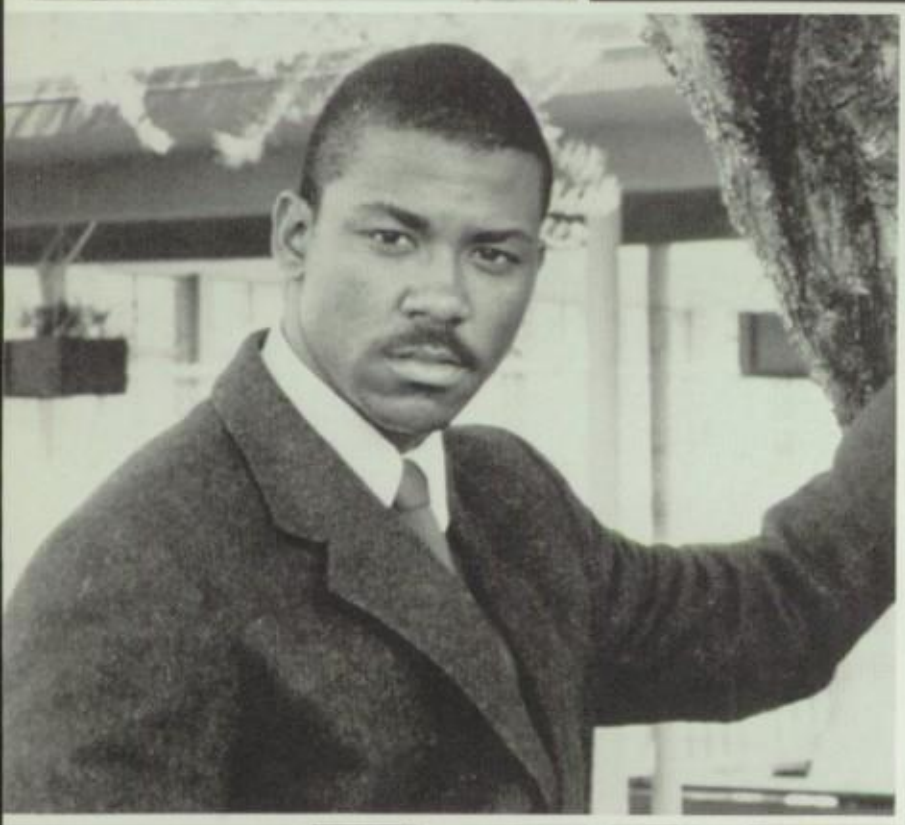
We salute your excellence and express our gratitude for all that you have so generously given. We wish you all God's blessings in the future.

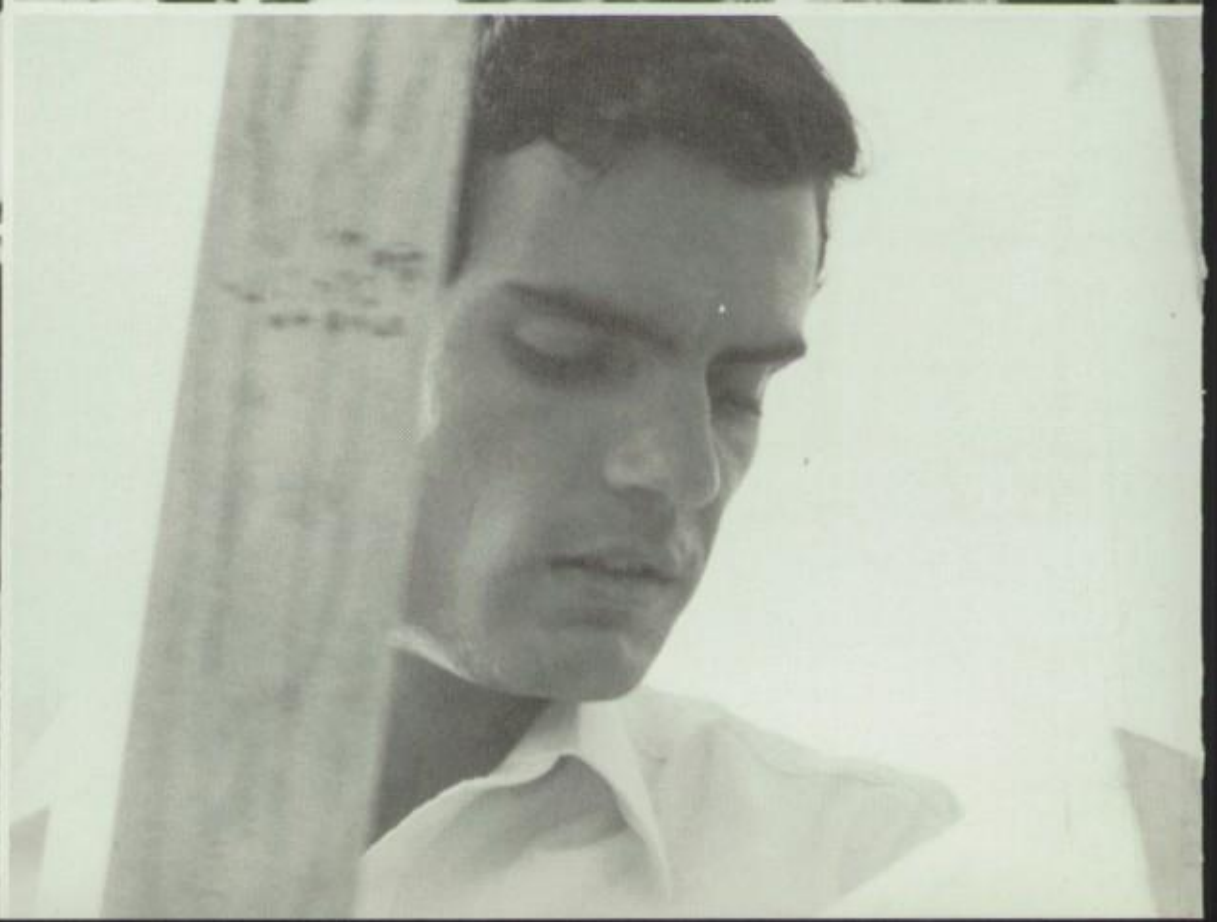
Father Junipero Serra

1984 marks the 200th year since the death of Father Junipero Serra, the man whom after Serra High School is named. 1984 and 1985 have been designated by the Catholic Church as the years when Father Serra should be honored, and so this year at Serra saw many special events paying tribute to a profoundly dedicated and inspired servant of God. Father Serra is best remembered as the founder of the California Missions and his work in bringing the Gospel of Christ to the Indians that inhabited California. Yet, we do not honor some dusty figure out of the past, for Father Serra is a man who while deserving the title of Saint, was very human a man we can all identify with. Father Serra was physically handicapped and knew disappointment throughout his life. His life was anything but easy. And so we learn from this man, Father Junipero Serra, that what distinguishes the Saints from the average person is not really the gifts you possess, or the circumstance you find yourself in, but rather the faith you have in God and your willingness to live according to that faith.

Student Council 1985

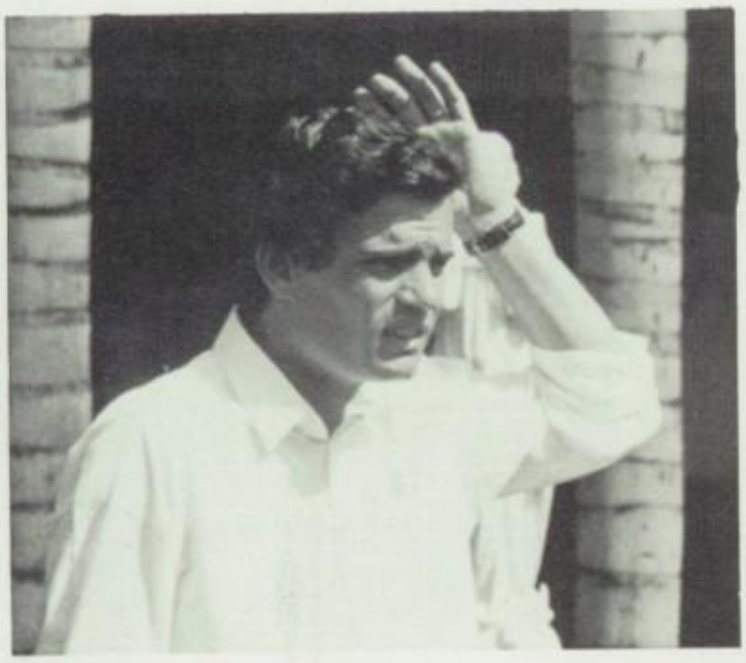
This year's Student Council got off to an excellent start holding meetings as early as last summer. It is this kind of determination which has set the standards for the rest of the year. Under the leadership of Student-Body President, Derek Honore, and under the guidance of moderator Craig Mitchell, the student council has provided us with a yearful of memorable moments from our spirit-rising rallies to our jam-packed dances. This year's executive officers are: Derek Honore (President), Brian Cooper (Vice-president), Anthony Franklin (Treasurer), Erikk Alldridge (Secretary), and Kelvin Boagni (Chief Justice).

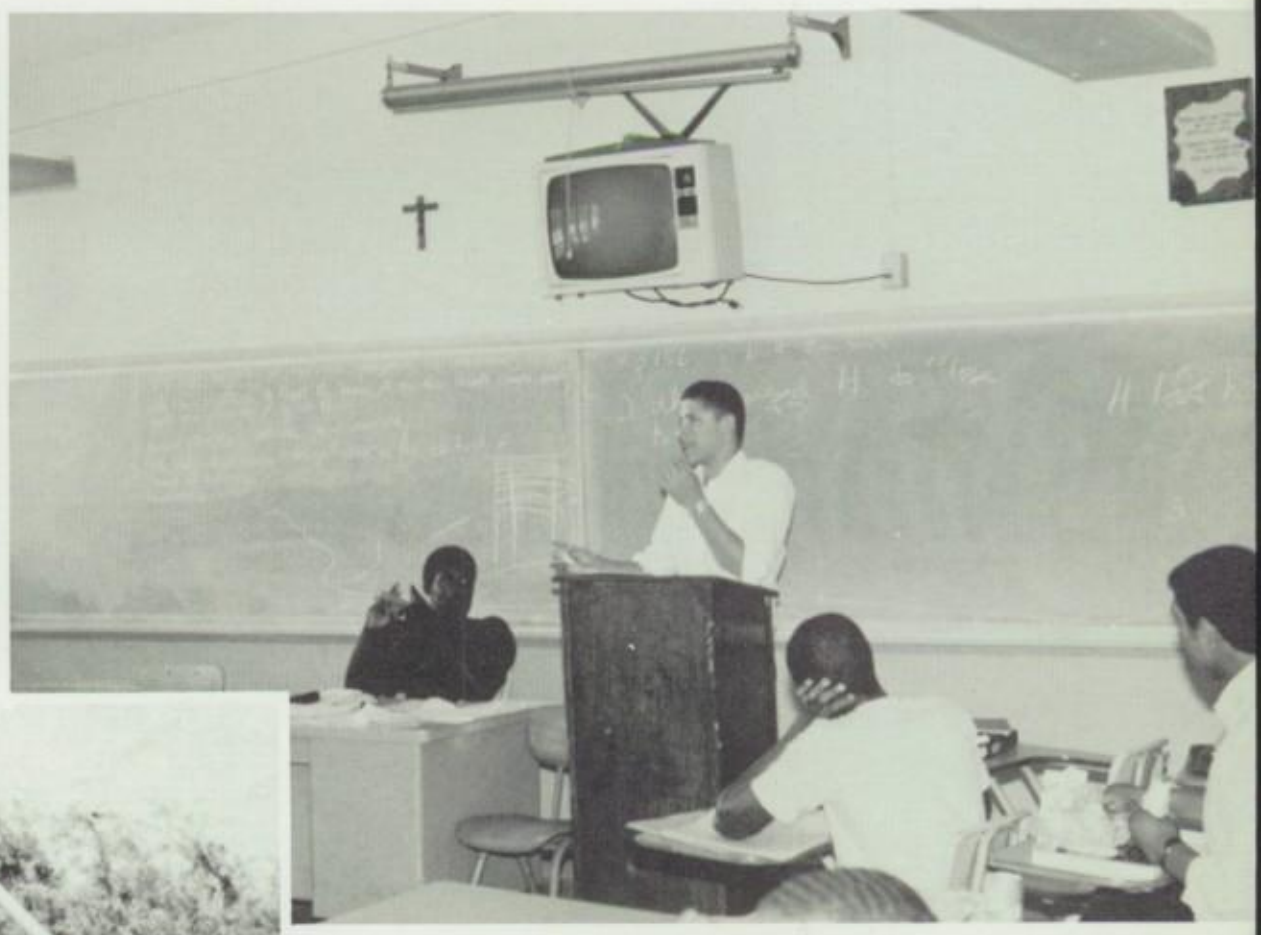




Student Council has its visible image- Student Council meetings, dances, homecoming, etc. All of these functions are vital to student life at Serra, but there is much that Student Council does that few students are aware of. Each activity requires hours of planning, preparation and the enevitable cleanup. While student council means leading a rally, it also means scrapping gum off of the gym floor at one in the morning.

On Student Council all are not equal. Shortly after Student Council elections it becomes evident who ran for the status of holding office and those who ran because they wanted to serve their fellow students. For those who serve, their develops a commraderie, a molding of a common purpose born of shared experiences. They reap the benefits of giving to others, whereas those who have nothing but the title of their office live in the shadows, trying to escape the judgement of their peers. In this respect Student Council is not different from the real world- those who give, reap; those who fail to give, reap their own discontent.





Building Homecoming floats, conducting Student Council meetings, leading the school in singing the Alma Mater- images of a year well spent.

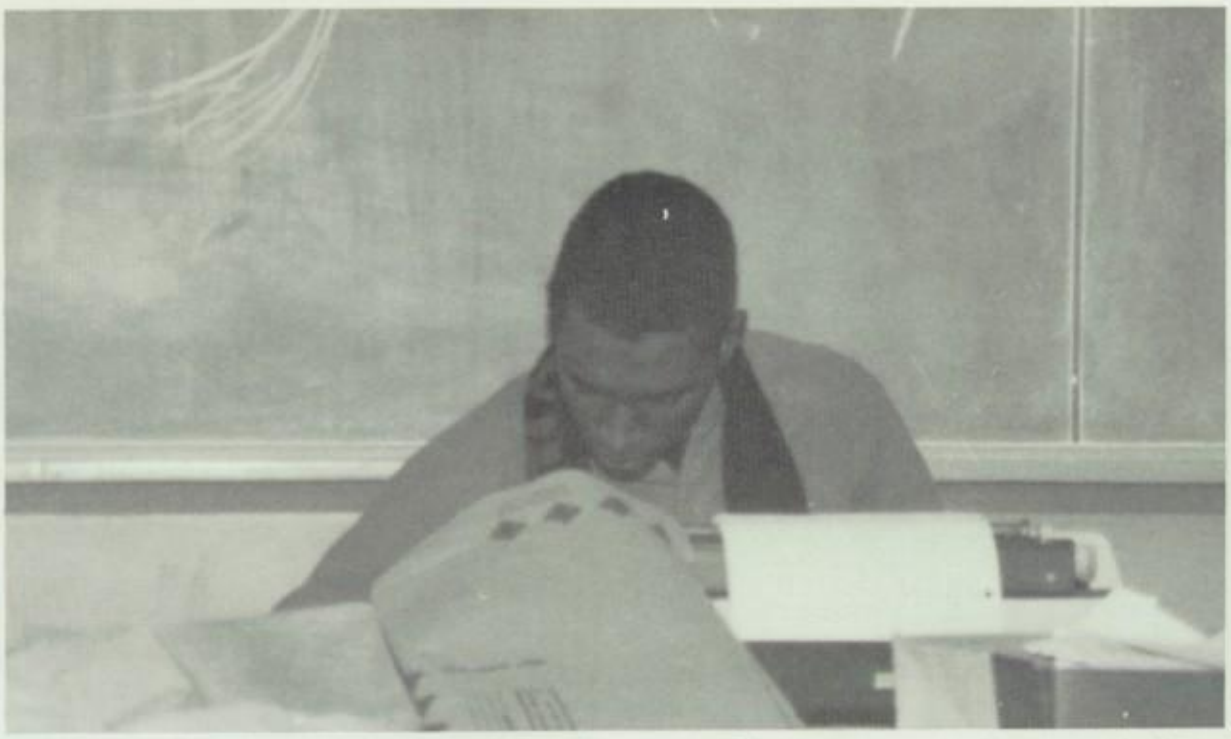
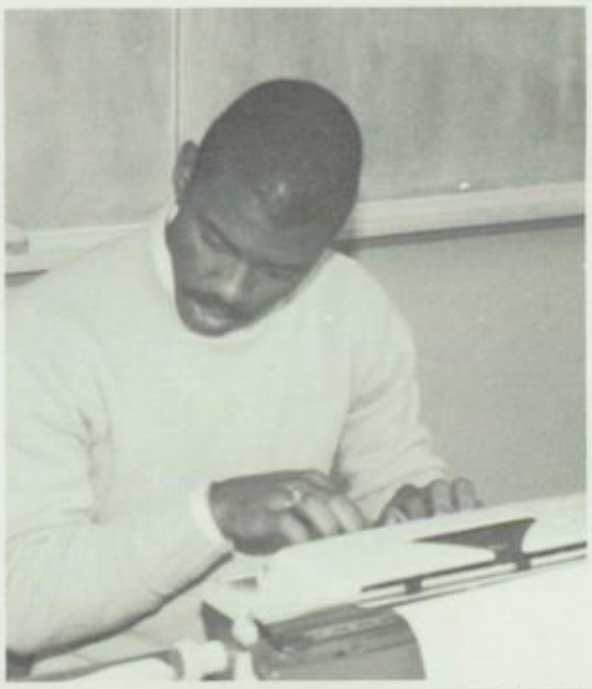
Anthony Franklin

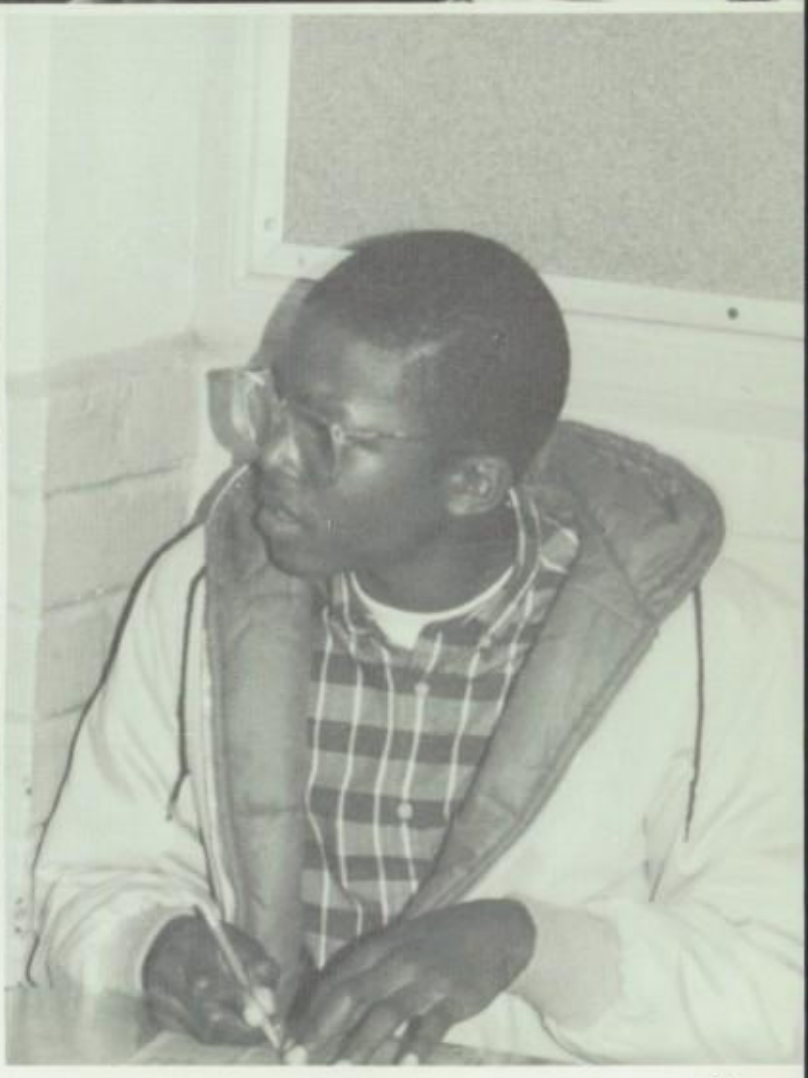
Shawn Boykin

The 1985 Yearbook Staff was composed of a group of people who has what it takes to produce a Serra Yearbook-Dedication. This Year's Staff was very small but we made up for our lack of quantity with quality. Under the determined leadership of the Editor-in-Chief, Derek Honor, the Yearbook Staff has produced one of the best books in Serra's history. Derek is a strong leader but all leaders have assistants and his assistant was Anthony Franklin, Co-Editor-in-Chief. Anthony was the person who took up the slack when the Editor had to much to do. All in all, Anthony Franklin was the person who filled in where it was needed. Then there is Shawn Boykin, assistant Co-Editor. He is the person who helps the whole staff. But the person that is behind the scences and is a major part of the Yearbook Staff is our Cooridinator Craig Mitchell. He contributes his time and guidance to the Yearbook Staff and the Staff Members, but most important, Mr. Mitchell contributes his intellect. He gives us his famous pharses and his sophicated ideals. But, the people who are the Yearbook Staff are: Keith Brooks, Shane Crosby, Roderick Hawkins, Darryle May, Keith Bowen, Sherston Sanz, Darrin Barnes, Mark Sutherlin, Gregory George, and Raymond Vergara. These are the people who possess dedication and the peple who has shown that they have pride in producing Serra's 1985 Yearbook.

A Staff As Well As A Family







Cheerleader

Sports is a constant up and down event. The momentum can be changed at the flick of the wrist. Hours have passed by when spectators have sat on the edge of their seats. And then their are times when they can sit back and relax.

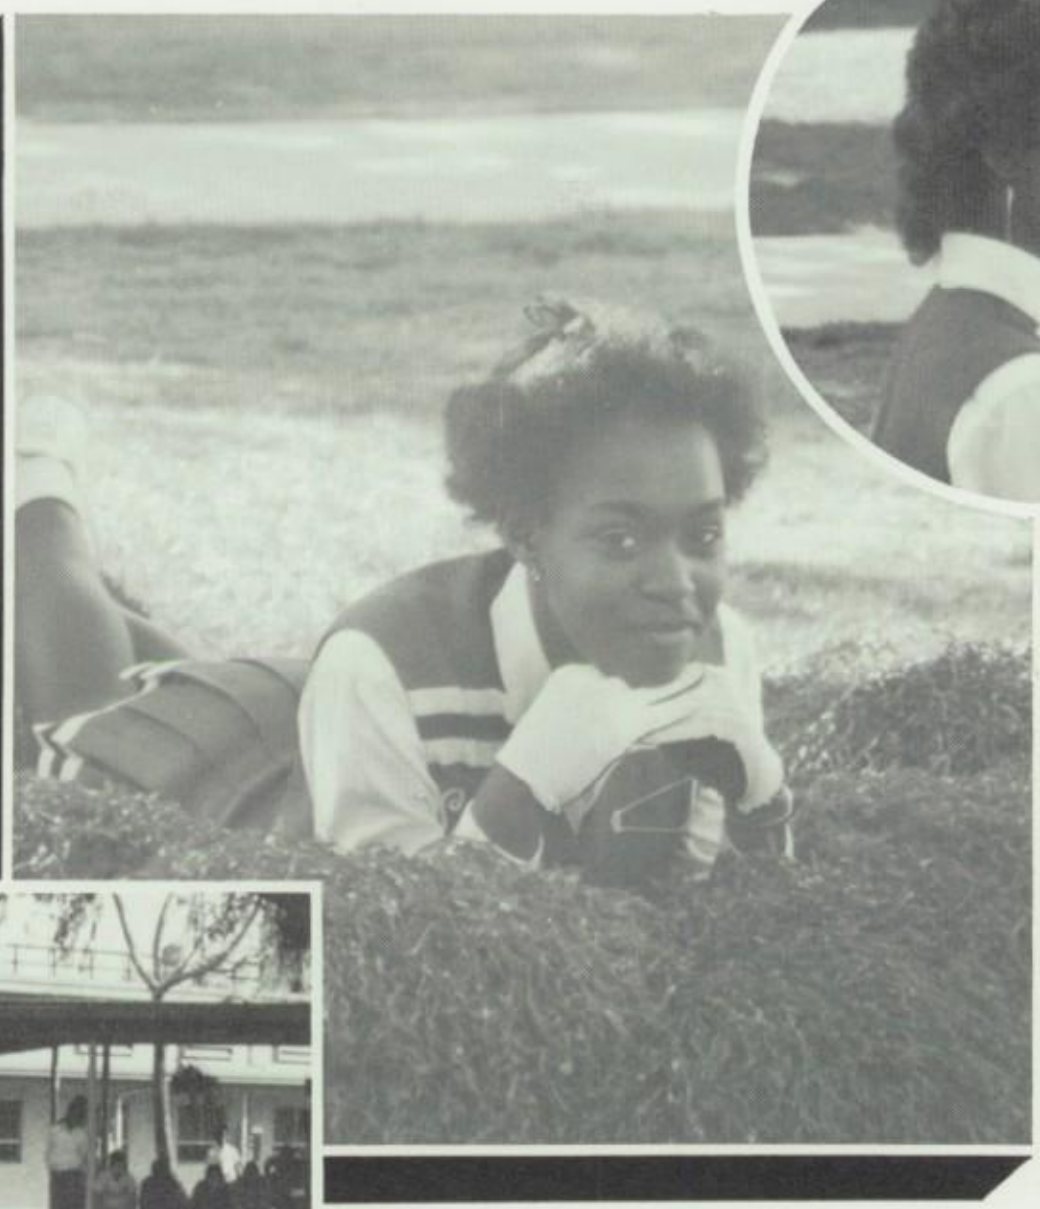
Points are made, touch-downs are scored and baskets are made. Those are the times when you hear chants of players' names and numbers. These players are what you call spotlighted.

1. Cherl - one of the captains.
2. Missy - one of the most exciting.
3. Smurfy, Nikki, Jamé - the three other captains.
4. Tanya and Manni - express the warmth needed.
5. Tish - a cheerful member of the Pep*S-quad.

Sidelining the athletic spotlights, are the energizers of the game, our cheerleaders. Through our victorious seasons of football and basketball, attractive young ladies bearing the name of Serra gave a new definition to cheering. The crowd was highly enthused by the viberant cheers. At times, when the situation was not favorable for Serra, the young ladies in white and blue with bright smiles kept the spirit alive.

Each cheer seems to present its own drive. The cheers carry the crowd into an up-roar, which in turn gave the players the drive to go further. Our football team is the Camino Real League Champions. And our basketball went to the Long Beach Arena, after clenching the Camino Real League Title.

Our cheerleaders, songleaders and pep squad contributed their part to our winning and certainly added to the excitment of our sports events.



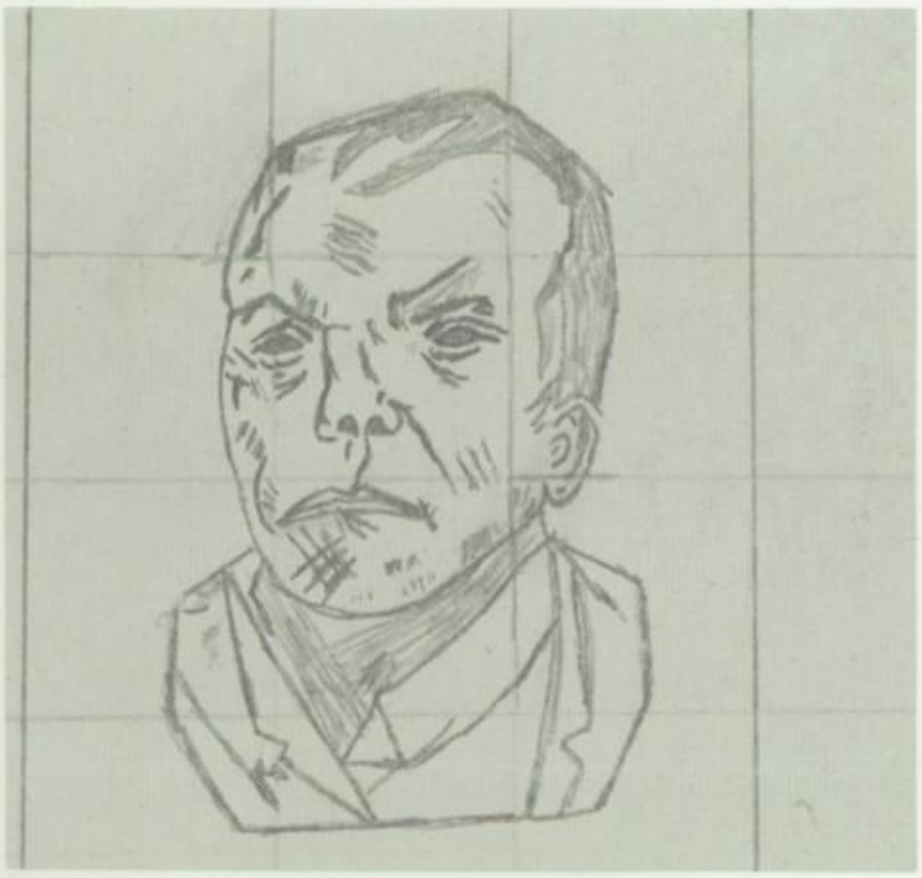
Pep* Squad 85

1. Angel - one of the most expressive in the Pep Squad.
2. Evette - a joyful member of the Pep Squad.
3. Dee - a unique member of the cheerleaders.
4. Traci - a quiet member of the cheerleaders.
5. Camile - a caring member of the Pep Squad.

Being a cheerleader was traditionally a task filled by a young lady with a nice personality who could capture the attention of the crowd. But as times changed so did the idea of the cheerleader. This concept has been picked up by the members of our student body. Derek Honore, Shawn Boykin, Shane Crosby, Darrin Barnes, Anthony Davis, Roderick Hawkins, William Griffith, Derrick Knight, Keith Brooks, and all the other "Noise Boys" in the "Loud Crowd" are responsible for the trend at Serra.

Expressions Through Art

Titus Washington



Darren Allen

Art is the way in which artists express their innermost feelings. It is the way they share their veiw of reality. It is a hobby that demands a God given gift, an unlimited amount of time, and a bit of expertise. It also demands that one use his mind in ways most others are not able. Art requires creativity, reflection and deep concentration, as the best of artists expose the contents of their souls.

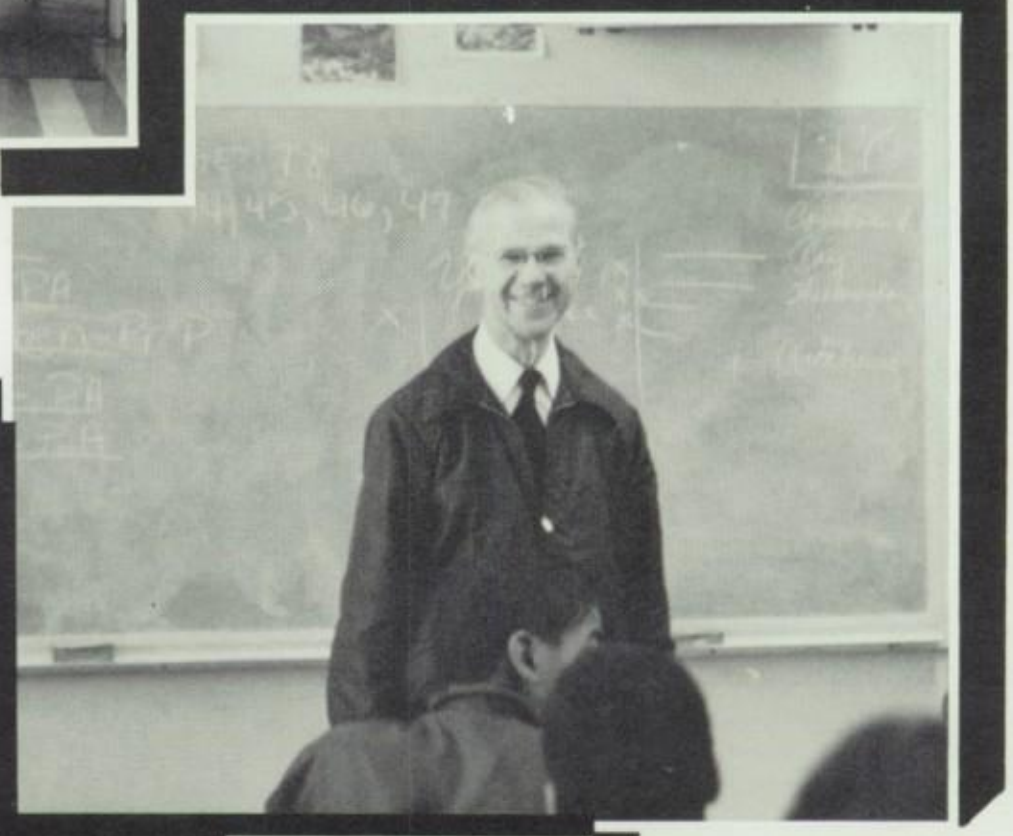
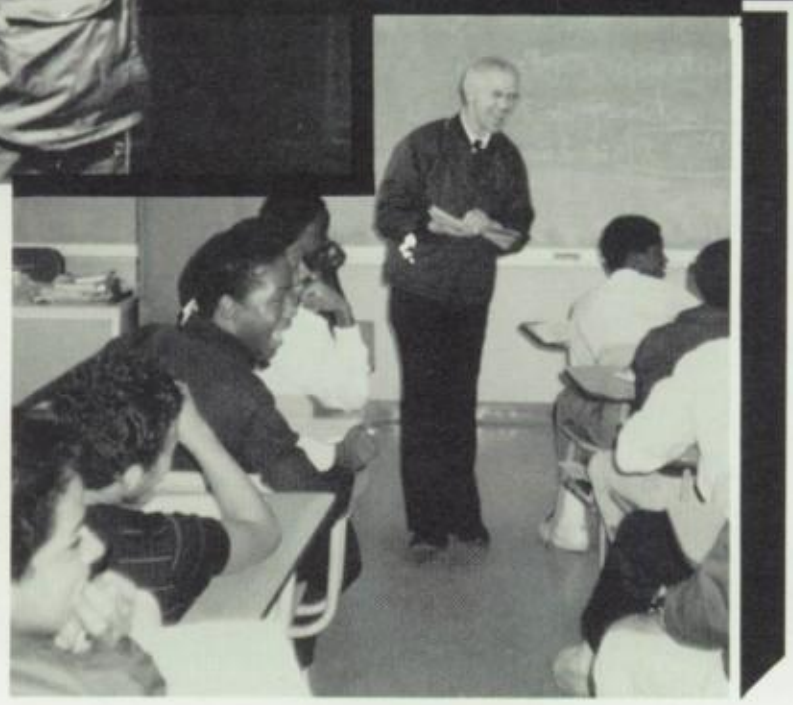
The students and teachers worked hand in hand to enhance Serra. They worked in both athletics and academics. The work in academics could be seen as teachers held study halls and after school classes for the students. The work in athletics could be seen as the coaches and principal worked together to see to it that the students in sports had the best.

The various activities on campus reflect Serra at its best. The popularity of the dances, the visit of Cardinal Manning, the singing of the Alma Mater and even the smiles of our administration makes us happy to be called "Serra Men."

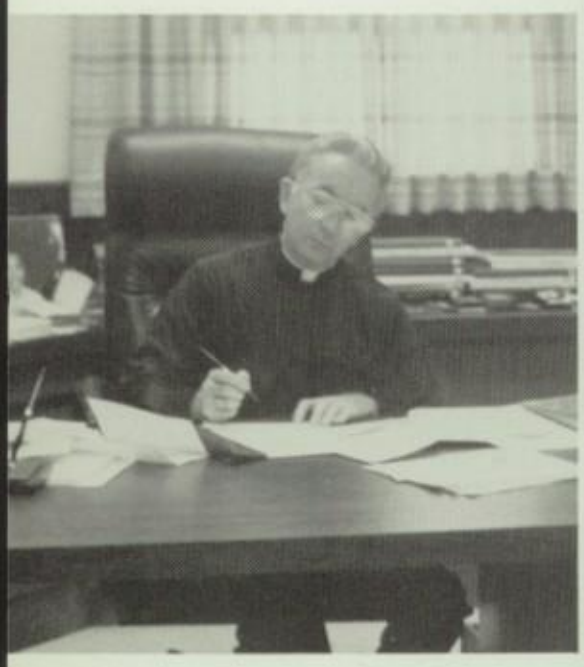
Congratulations Brother Charles: 25 Years Of Service As A Marianist At Serra

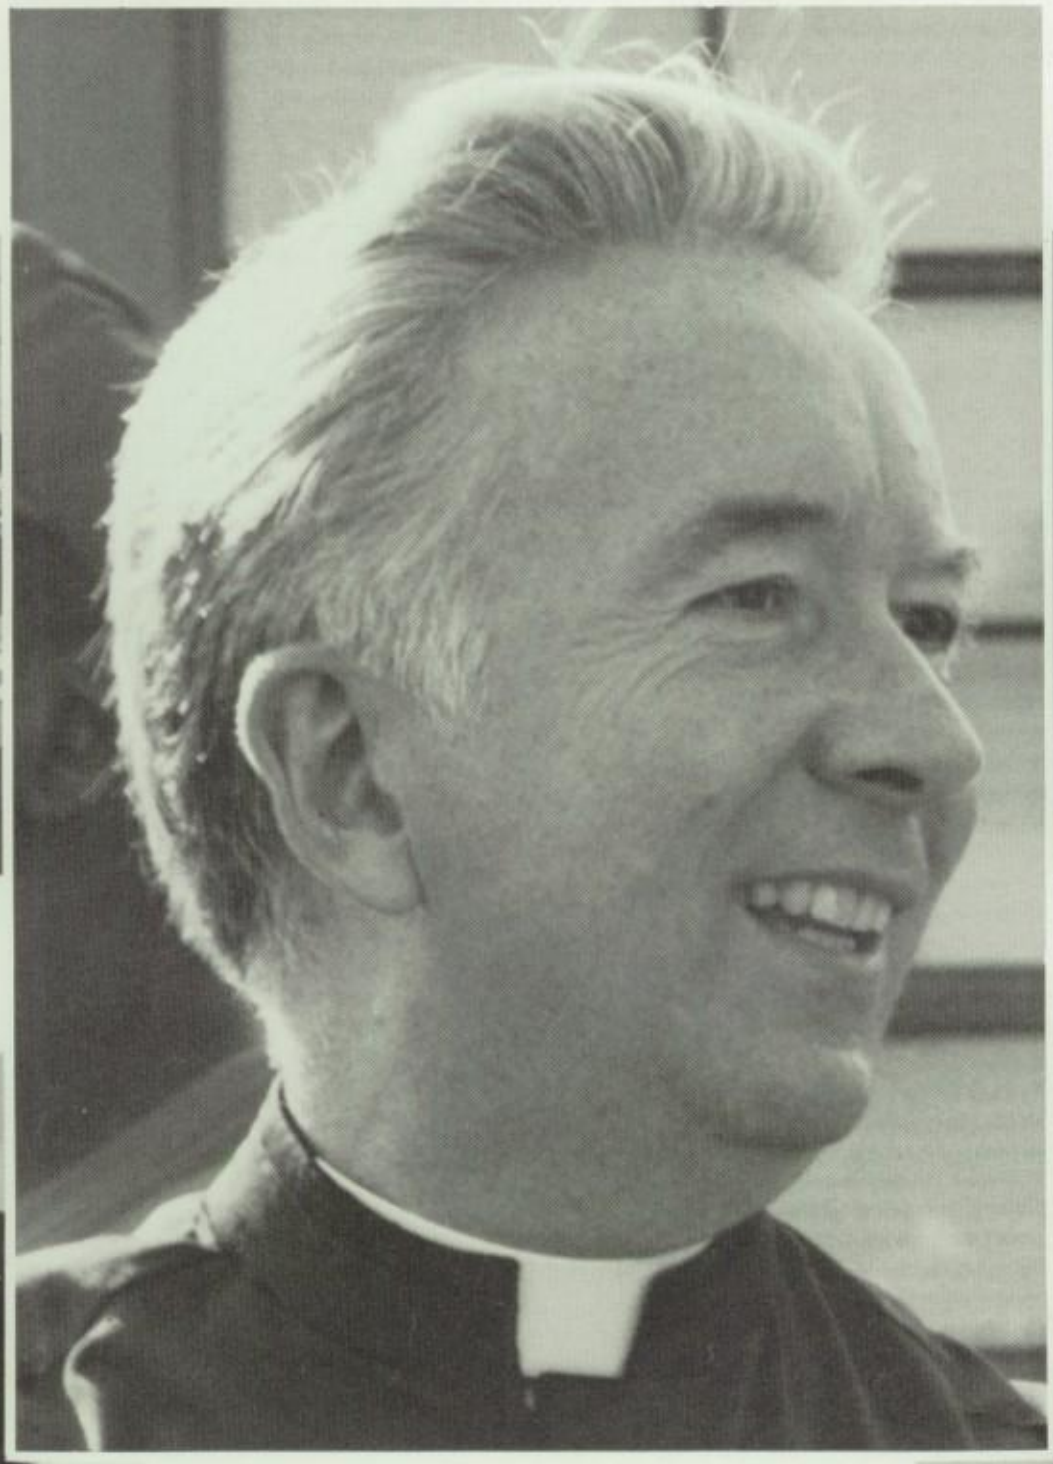
Bro. Charles adding humor to his class ...

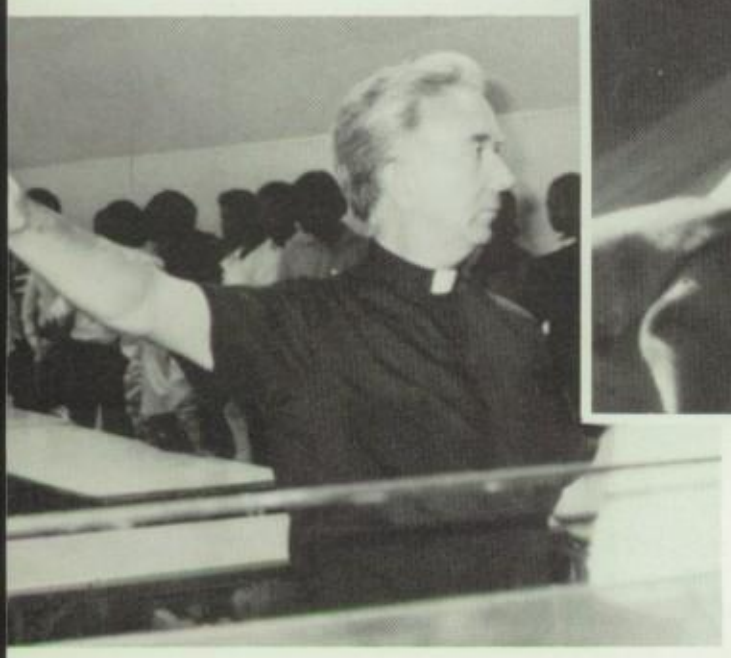




Our Father Who Art At Serra







This has been a year of rebuilding for Serra High School. The man behind this rebuilding is Father Patrick Philbin. His hardwork, dedication, and genuine concern are unparalleled.

Yet there is more to Father Pat than hard work around the school. There is the personal relationship that he establishes with each individual student. Who has not felt the warmth of his presence, the comfort in his smile? His is a tough love- he expects a lot out of us. Yet, he realizes that in expecting a lot, he will get a lot and we will become better men because of it.

Father Pat is a warm and caring person, one we are proud to call our principal and our friend.

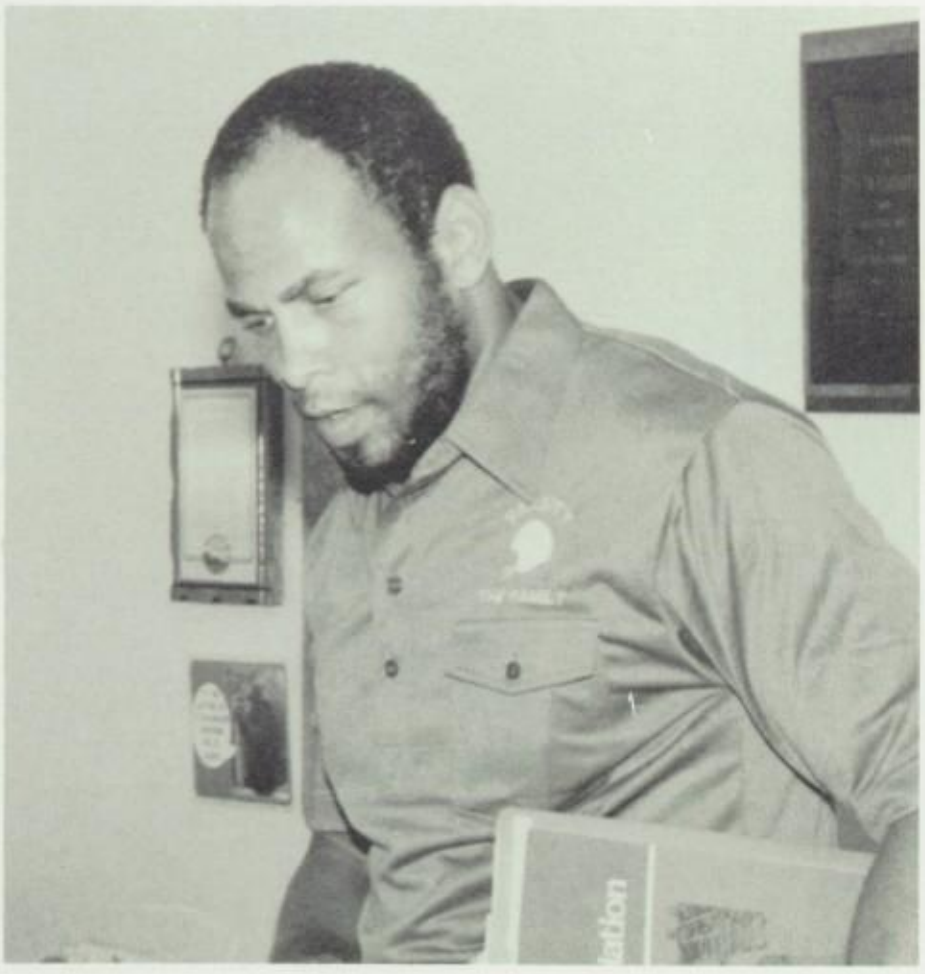
Mr. Craig Mitchell

Mr. Mitchell and Derek share a word or two.

Smile! You're on Candid Camera.

Perhaps one of the finest examples of decency and Christian Manhood that we at Serra could hope to emulate is our vice-principal, Craig Mitchell. In an attempt to describe Craig, one word comes to mind- dedication. On any given evening, he can be seen working well into the night. He is a man who possesses a fine mind- a man preoccupied with giving of himself to help others. Many a Serra student have benefitted from his example.

Dr. Dale Washburn



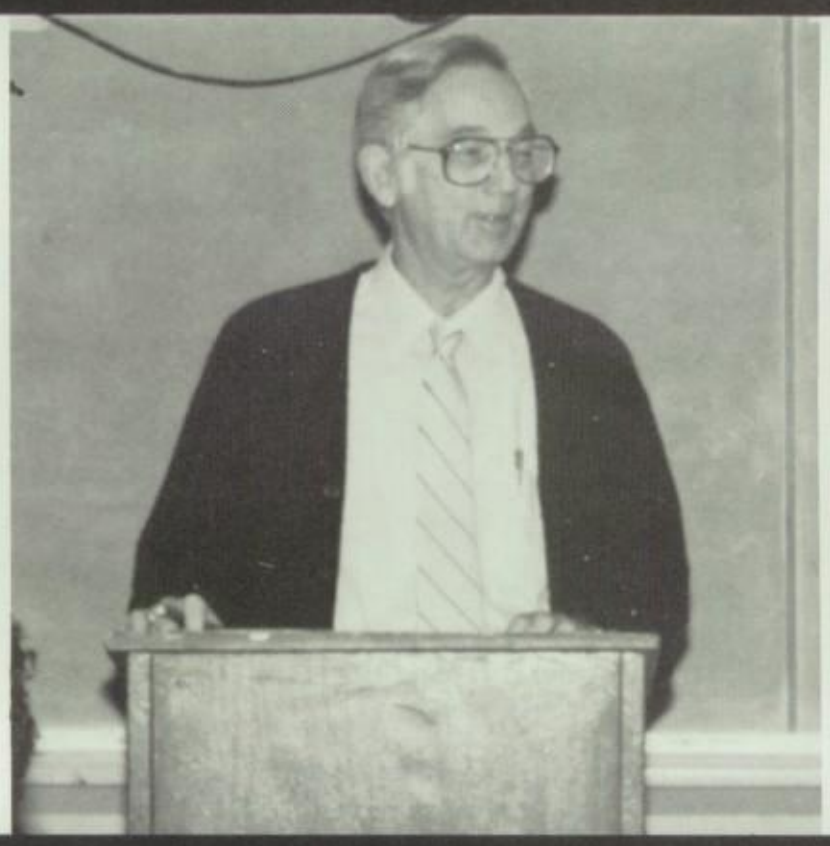
Is this a look of misunderstanding.

Have a nice day!

It has been said that Dr. Dale Washburn possesses the unique gift of turning boys into men- truer words were never spoken. Any Serra student who has stepped into his class, played a sport under him, or merely gotten to know him, can discuss "Doc's" profound effect upon him. As athletic Director, he has done wonders for our sports program and has even brighter plans for the future. The most educated man on campus, "Doc" is an example to the family of the virtues of continuing one's education.

Mrs. Badon is simply irreplacable. Not only does she serve as a tireless secretary to the administration, she's a mother to the student who forgot his lunch money, a nurse to the student who comes down sick. And every morning she approaches the day with a smile and readiness to serve the school. The love that she holds for the students is unsurpassed; their love for her is equally impressive.

Bro. Urban Naal has a new job this year. In addition to his usual job teaching world studies, he is the new academic counselor here at Serra. He has adapted to his new position well, taking every opportunity to help the students plan their academic future. But the memorable thing about Br. Urban is his wit; always the right joke at the right time.



Perhaps one of the most memorable persons at Serra is Joann Kennelly. Ms. Kennelly is indeed a special part of Serra who has touched all of our lives. We can never forget the care with which she prepares our meals at earch, or the joy she brings dressed as a witch every Halloween. Those of us lucky enough to truly know her know her smile to be reflective of the love and joy in her soul.

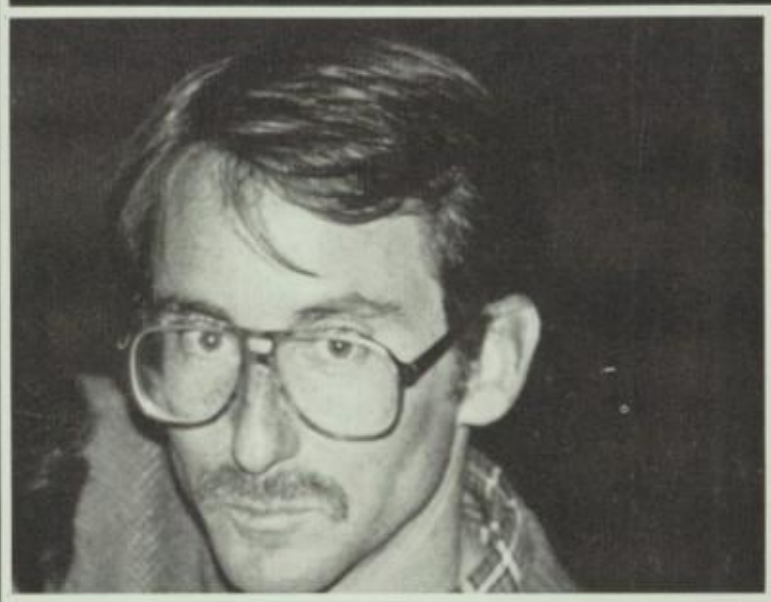
People Who Care

"Can we try, huh?"

Fr. Mark Neary
Ethics

Fr. Mark is a new-comer to Serra; his deep faith and desire to help as chaplain, counselor and teacher render him a vital part of our family. When someone needs support, rest assured, he will be there.

"Thaaat's right!"



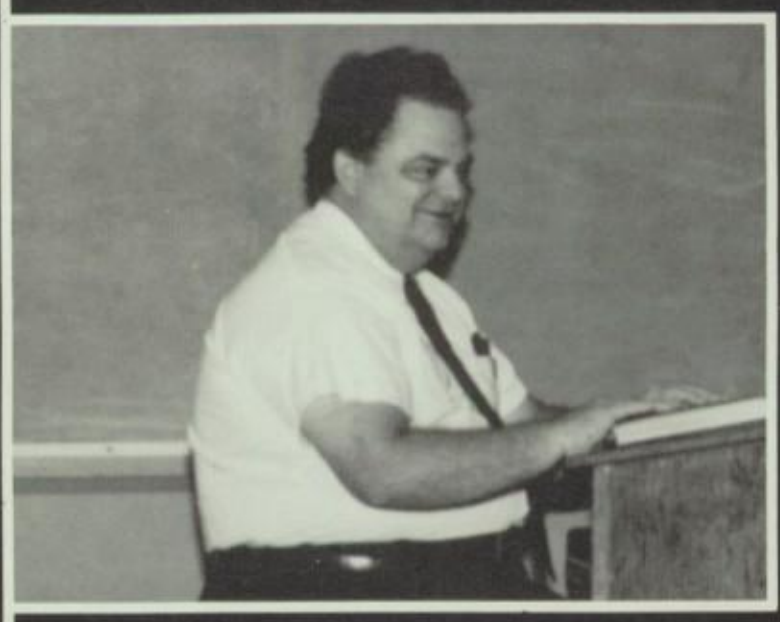
Mr. Jim Masterson
Health, Physical Education

Jim Masterson is a sterling example of how learning can be a joyous as well as profitable experience. The personal relationship with each student is indicative of his open personality and his popularity.

"I just don't know about you, son!"

Bro. Al Glanton
English

Any student who has entered Bro. Al's class can attest to his credentials as a teacher. His demanding attitude toward the learning process is matched only by his warmth as he hugs you and calls you "Son."



Bro. Pat McMahon
Geometry, Algebra

Bro. McMahon comes to Serra with many years experience teaching, providing students with a good foundation. In addition, his easy-going, kind personality adds sparkle to the Serra family.

"What's wrong with my pants?"

Mr. Charles Bunker
Reading Specialist

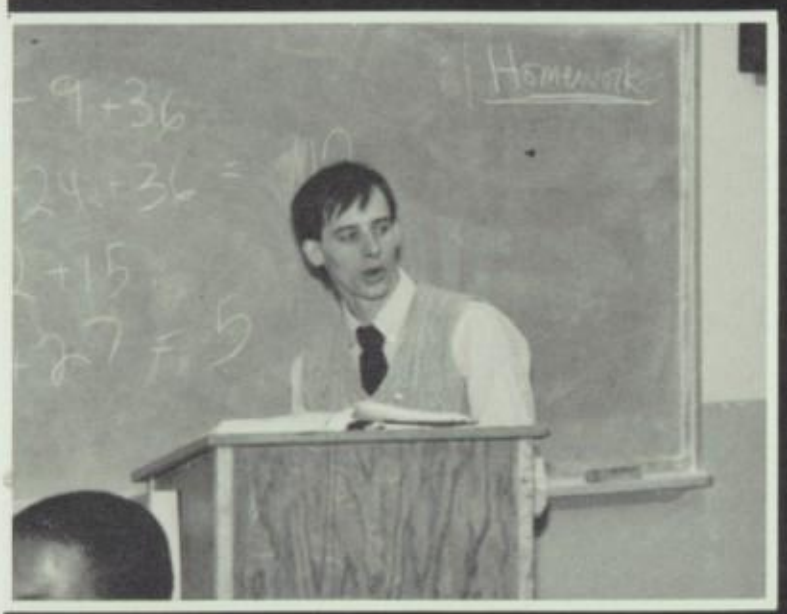
In his first year here at Serra, Mr. Bunker has fit extremely well into our family structure. His expertise and commitment to his field, not to mention his enjoyable nature, are true assets to Serra.

"Let's look it up in the handbook."

Mr. Marty Plourde
English, Ethics

Mr. Plourde, while the youngest member of the faculty, is no rookie teacher. His experience in English and Ethics belies his age. His youthful vitality is essential to student life at Serra.

"Right!"



Mr. Jim Benson
Algebra

Mr. Benson logs his first year at Serra. Recently graduated from college, he came to Serra because he thought it logical to give what he had received. His decentness is most evident.

"You haven't got the faith of a mustard seed."

Mr. George McDaniels
Computers, Physical Science, P.E.

George McDaniels, as any of his students can tell you, is respected as much as their own fathers. An excellent example of a fine Christian man, "Mac" has shown that through discipline and faith, growth comes.

" Alright. Settle down in here!"

Mrs. Elaine Dudley
Bus. Law, Accounting, Ethics, Typing

Elaine Dudley is by no means shy. Her outspoken nature has given her an excellent reputation as a disciplinarian. Yet the sensitive and cheerful side of her personality rears itself daily in the form of her caring smile.

"You must be out yo' fool mind!"

Mr. Michael Winston
Government, Economics, Pre-Algebra

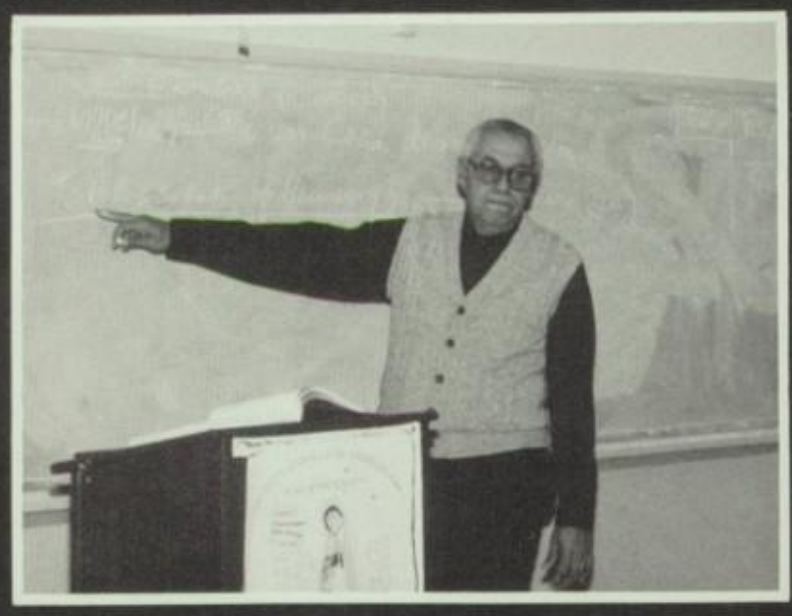
Any of Mr. Winston's students can tell you he takes his job seriously. He is not a play toy. Yet when called for, he can quickly bring a smile to any face.

"Be quiet, por favor!"

Mr. Jim Crowell
Biology, Oceanography

Jim Crowell is known for the ingenuith of his character. As a Biology teacher Mr. Crowell is unparallelled. The limits of increasing your intelligence in his class are the same as the limits of your imagination.

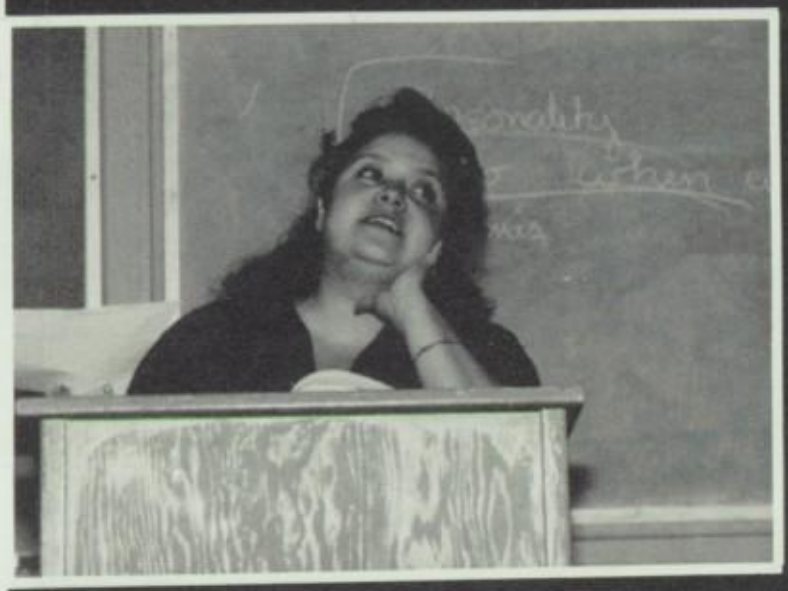
"Okay, folks! Don't get all 'chook' up!"



Mr. Mike Larranaga
Spanish

Mr. Larranaga is known for the passion he has for teaching spanish. This year he has not only fed the intellectual needs of serra students, but he along with his wife have been the force behind a much improved cafeteria.

"Quiet"



Ms. Melinda Ramirez
Ethics, Art

Ms. Ramirez, who teaches both art and junior ethics, conveys to her students a thorough knowledge of the material, which is enhanced by a genuine enthusiasm for what she teaches.

"Slow down in the hallway."

Sr. Jane-Marie Callinan
Librarian

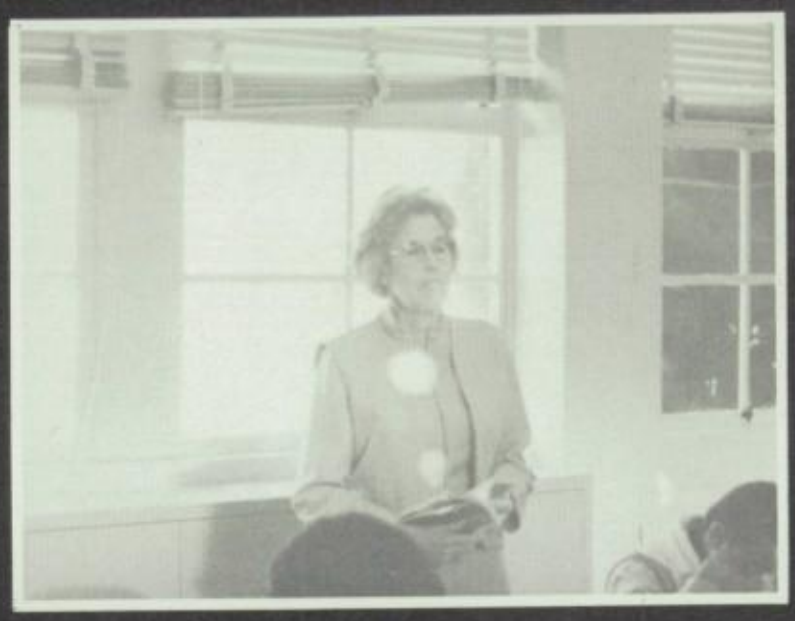
Sr. Jane-Marie will let you know as you enter the library that it is not a circus. She runs a tight ship and those who choose to do their work in the library truly appreciate it.

"Yo!"

Mr. George Waddell
Physics, Chemistry, Pre-Calculus

At first glance, one might be intimidated by Mr. Waddell, mistaking his energetic nature for eccentrism. Yet once in his class, it is not hard to detect his dedication to the teaching profession.

"What are you doing in here?"



Sr. Eileen Rath
Reading Assistant

Every Serra student has at one time or another seen Sr. Eileen strolling down the hall. The care she shows on her face is evident of the love she holds for the family.

A Mass In Father Serra Giving

Anthony Franklin leads the procession through the honor guard.

Cardinal Manning joins in the opening hymn.

As A Christian community Serra celebrates by coming together at Mass. To honor Fr. Serra a very special liturgy was planned. The Cardinal of Los Angeles, his Eminnence Timothy Cardinal Manning came to Serra along with two dozen priests from our neighboring parishes. Many dignitaries took time to be with us, conveying their appreciation for what Serra High School has given to the community of Los Angeles.

The words of Christ are proclaimed to His people.

Father Mark distributes communion.

Honor Of Paying Tribute Thanks

The Most Improved Students receive an award and congratulations from the Cardinal.

Cardinal Manning reenacts the Last Supper of our Lord.

The Father Serra Mass left a lasting impression on all who attended. The Cardinal repeatedly praised Serra students for their prayerfulness and keen involvement throughout the Mass. Leaders of the community were proud to share this important event with us. The Mass was the product of long planning and dedicated preparation, and was another example that any meaningful experience in life is the product of effort and love.

Cardinal Manning and Father Pat share a light moment.

Father Pat gives communion to prayerful students.

Father Serra Bicentennial Dinner

Junipero Serra High is the product of an incredible amount of dedication, generosity, vision and plain hard work. These crucial qualities describe the gifts that many people have given to Serra over the years. And so it was fitting, in the year of Father Serra's Bicentennial, to pay tribute to those, who like Father Serra, gave so much of themselves to something they believed in- Serra High School. Honored on this occassion were the parents who long after their sons had graduated worked at every athletic event; honored were the parents who worked every Thursday at Bingo, sacraficing a good nights sleep for the welfare of the school; honored were the teachers who had given of themselves in the classroom and in every imagineable way beyond the classroom- as a coach, a friend, a counselor, as someone who genuinely cared and believed in the young men at Serra. Serra High School needed to say "Thank You" for the invaluable gifts received.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie James receive a plaque in appreciation for their dedicated service to Serra.

Mrs. Pam Badon, certainly one of the most vital people at Serra- year after year.

Dale Washburn- a man Serra is deeply indebted to.

"Never Go Backwards-Always Go Forward."
Fr. Junipero Serra

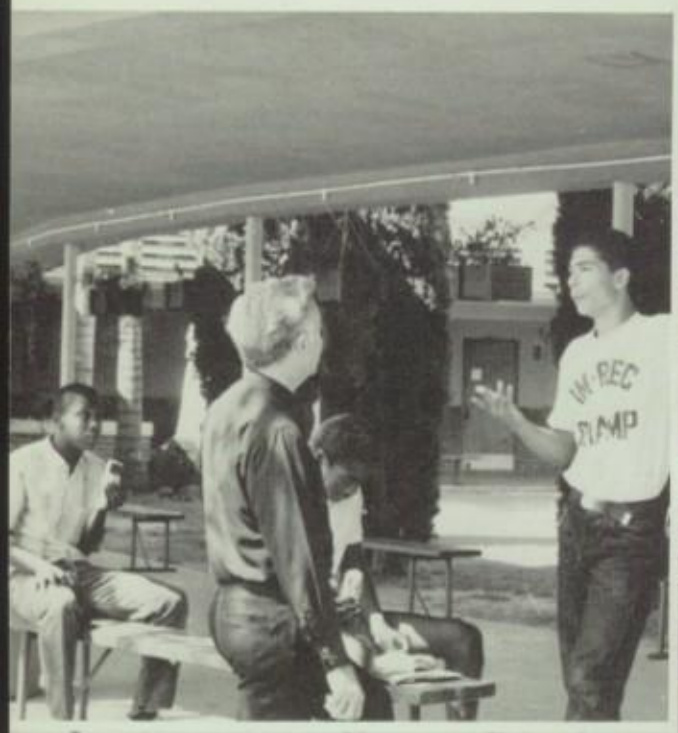
Those Who Made The Evening Special

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn pays tribute to Father Serra.

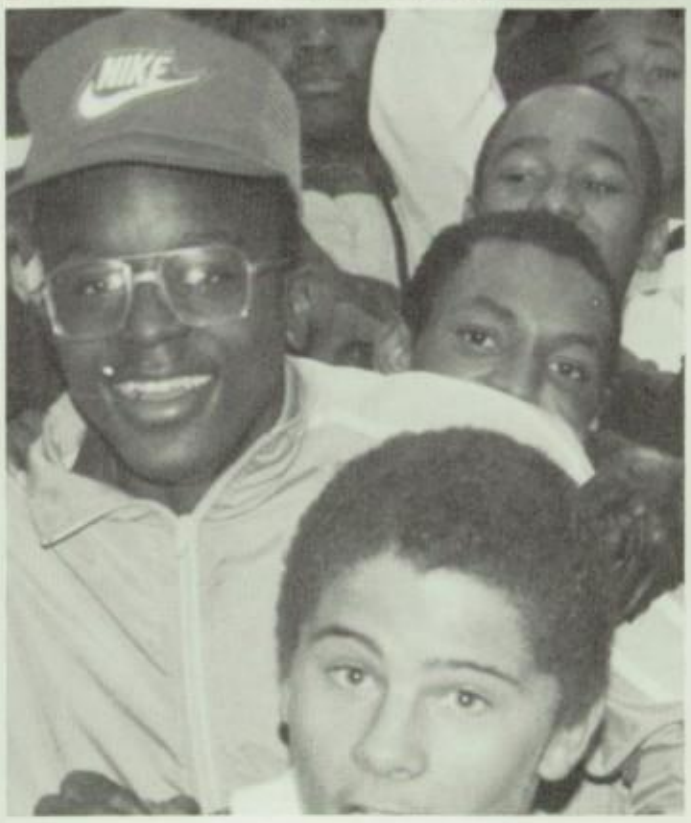
Dinner was served by Serra's finest-it's students. From appearances, they enjoyed the work.

Lynn Mitchell shares her talents to make the evening more memorable.

The one man who did not receive an award at the Bicentennial Dinner was the man who best represents Father Serra to everyone at Serra High. That man is Father Pat, our principal. The very idea to have a testamonial dinner was Father Pat's. When one looks at Serra's achievements this past year you see the caring hand ofFather Patrick Philbin.

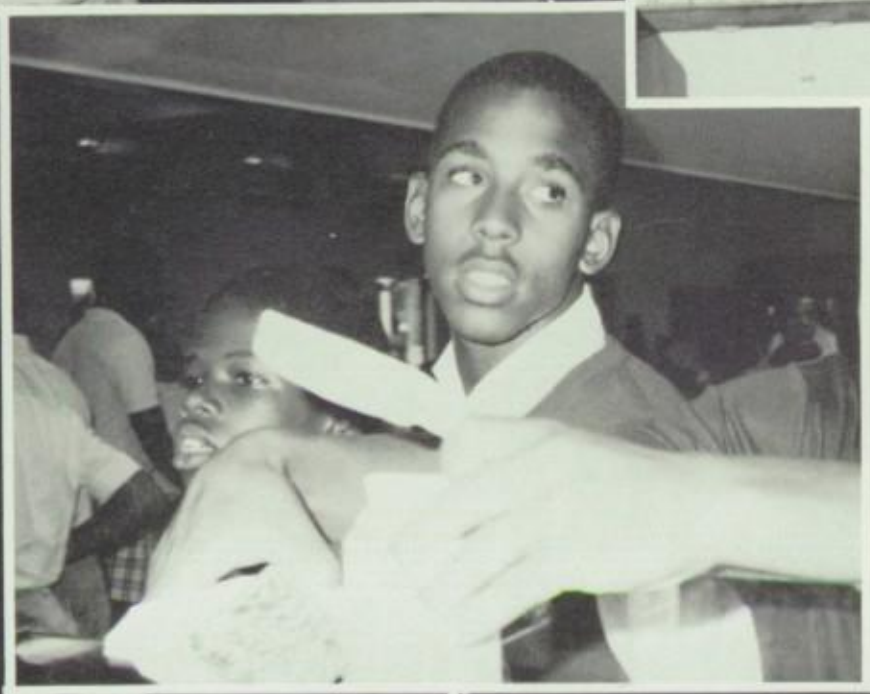


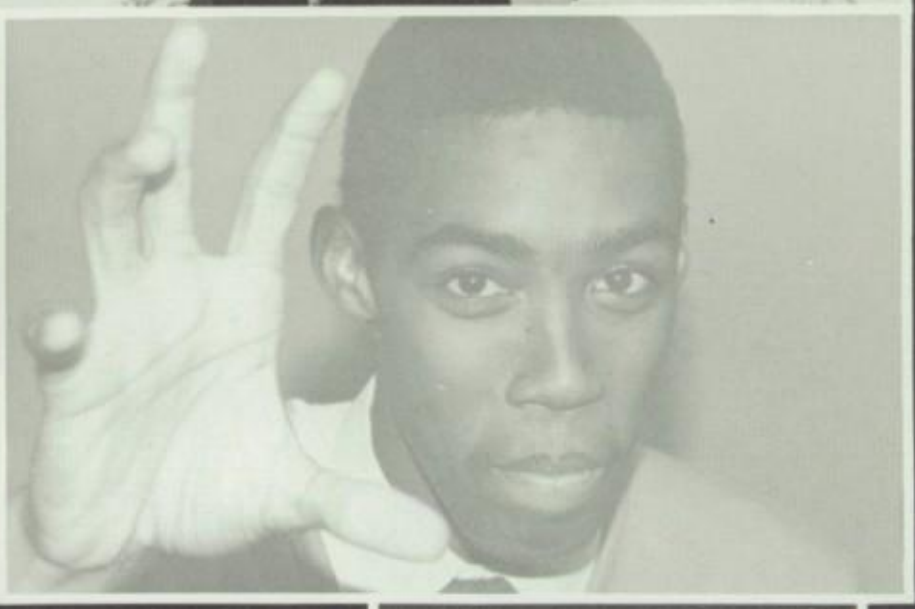
The life at Serra had many facets. Come around Serra any time — before, during and after and one could see the lifestyles.

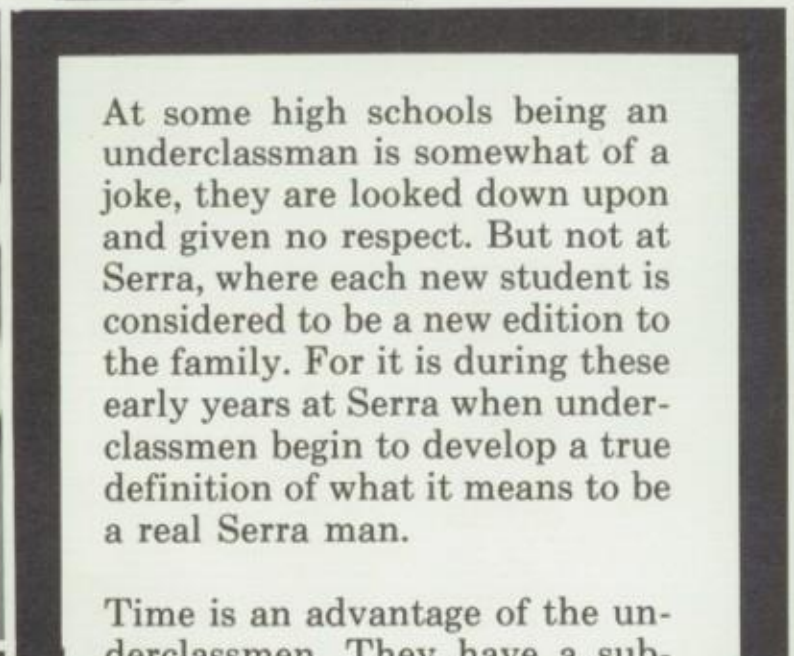


The atomsphere at Serra was one of a true family — the constant embraces and the smiles and the seriousness.

Underclass "Serramen"







At some high schools being an underclassman is somewhat of a joke, they are looked down upon and given no respect. But not at Serra, where each new student is considered to be a new edition to the family. For it is during these early years at Serra when underclassmen begin to develop a true definition of what it means to be a real Serra man.

Time is an advantage of the underclassmen. They have a substantial amount of time to build upon their academic records and to uphold the tradition of pride and dedication which the class of 1985 so greatly exemplified.

Joseph Jackson is one of the reasons why the Sophomore Class stands out from the rest of the school. He is a top achiever in academics and is one of the few sophomores who started on the Varsity Football Team. If you observe Joseph on campus, You can see he is a very mature young man. He is a underclassman who doesn't act like a underclassman but like a Senior who is preparing to take on life and the world. If you cound sum up Joseph in one sentence it would be this: A young man who will become a great man.

Perhaps that is what is so attractive about Kevin- you know who you are dealing with and what meets the eye is an unassuming, yet disciplined young man.

William Furguson, as a student, dedicated himself to the Serra Family. He has been in several rallies in which he brought out great laughter. William dedicated himself to the school by taking on the responsibility of being a vice-president of his homeroom and a varsity football manager. Even though William is a very short guy he is known by many students. He shows his kindness and great smile each day of school. To most people, William is known as a leader and the little brother they never had.

He attends many of the student activities with a lot of pride and enthusiasm. Ricky shows his friendship by inter-acting with everyone, especially on Serra Search. In the classroom, he tries to work to the best of his ability. He is a person that is striving hard academically and socially to be a true Serra Man.

He is a person who contributes his time and work for the benefit of our school. And most important he is one of many people at our school who represents the "TRUE SERRA MAN". He believes that there is a time and a place for everything and that high school is the time and place for working for a better tomorrow. Nelson Cade is without a doubt a leader at Serra.

If people wonder why Serra is an excellent school, people like Anthony Franklin deserve much of the credit. Academically Anthony is at the top of his class. And when it comes to involvement and commitment Anthony is the standard by which others are judged. Anthony is both treasuarer of the student body and co-editor of the yearbook. Simply put, Anthony is a "giver", and what he contributes is always quality.

When a family member dies, those who loved that person draw close together, sustaining one another. When Stevan died, Serra grieved as a family, classes stopped, embraces lasted until the hurt was bearable. And every Serra man looked on his own life with greater reverence, realizing that so many ways of this world defy understanding. We lived to learn with the unanswerable "Why?"

Yet Stevan's life answered more questions than his death raised. Is it possible to live and good and decent life? Are the quiet as important as those who raise their voices? Is the quality of a person's life, rather than it's length what really matters? Stevan William answered all of these questions for us. For the answers he gave us, and for his life, we will always be grateful.

The class of 1985 had the difficult task of leading the school in the first year of Serra's renewal- for 1984-85 brought many changes to Serra- a return to academic excellence, a return to athletic domination, a return to a school where solid disciple prevailed. The class of 1985 proved worthy of the challenge, a challenge that would not have been met without the determination and diligence of the senior class. As seniors, many of us hate to leave all that we have accomplished this year, mainly our many accomplishments in athletics. Of our four years at Serra, this year has been undoubtedly the best. Serra has gained a new outlook for itself, one of pride and dedication and also one of academic challenge.

When asked what school we attend we can now proudly say Serra High School. But time has now run out for us. We must walk upon new paths and venture into unknown valleys. No senior can say that he will miss the school work, but he will miss the family that he has established during his four years at Serra. There will be no more running to buy a cheese toast, no more bagging on someone at lunch time or laughing at underclassmen as you drive pass them on the bus stop. We will miss the special feeling that comes when we attend a basketball or football game with the bleechers packed with fans to cheer on the Cavaliers or our school. Yes, our school. A school we have attended for four years. A school that we entered at a very young and immature age. We entered it (some of us!) with "alfros" and an eighth grade mentality toward high school and life itself. Now we leave it as men ... Serra Men!!

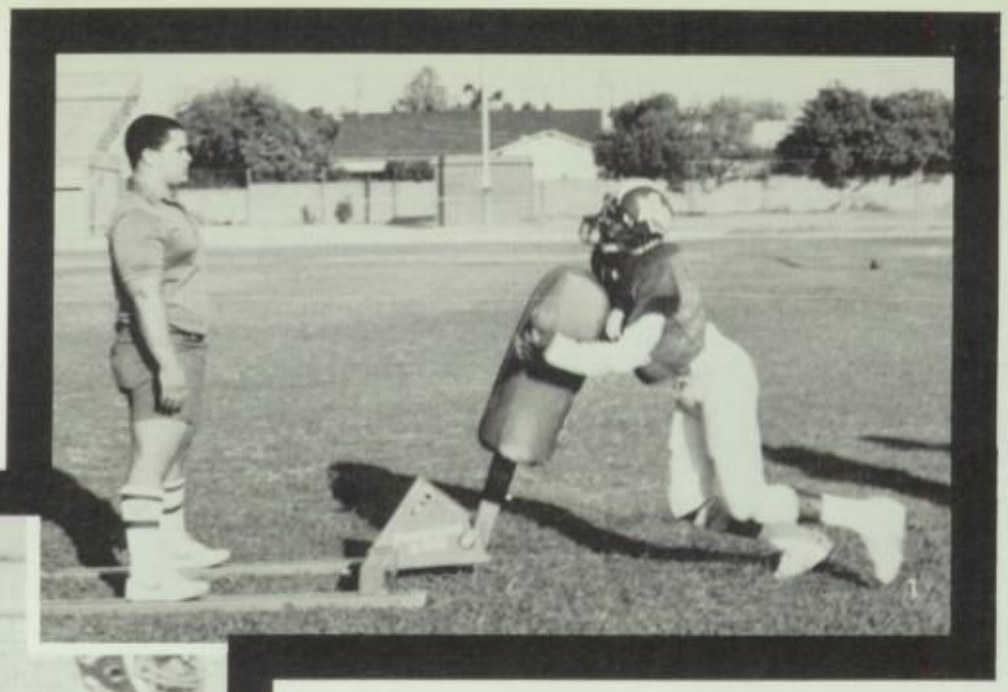
Coach Dale Washburn...
"Invaluable"

Dr. Dale Washburn, more affectionately known as "Washburn" or "Coach", has literally transformed Serra's football program. At the end of last year Fr. Pat wrote a providential letter to Dale Washburn, asking him to return to Serra. After several meeting with Fr. Pat, Dale Washburn made the decision that set into motion the recreation of the Serra Family. Serra students first met Dr. Washburn at an assembly before school recessed for the summer. Dr. Washburn delivered a no-nonsense message from day one. "If Serra is to win, the team must be unified. Serra will defeat larger schools when Serra plays more as a TEAM than it's opponents." And so the family concept began to take shape under Dr. Washburns careful hand. In any family there must be a father. To the Cavalier football team Coach Washburn has almost three dozen "sons". Why a "father" rather than just a first rate coach? A coach's job is to equip a team to physically and mentally perform a given sport. While Washburn does just that, it is merely a part of what he does for his "sons". What team member has not seen the light on in Dale's office late into the night and taken the opportunity to share a personal concern or problem with Coach Washburn?

What team member, when they made a mistake on or off the field, failed to see the anguish in Dale's eyes, a look that expressed concern not for a member of a team, but for a human being? In Dale Washburn's unique way, he has given testimony to the Gospel proclamation: "With Love all things are possible." The Cavalier record speaks for itself.

A Grueling Summer



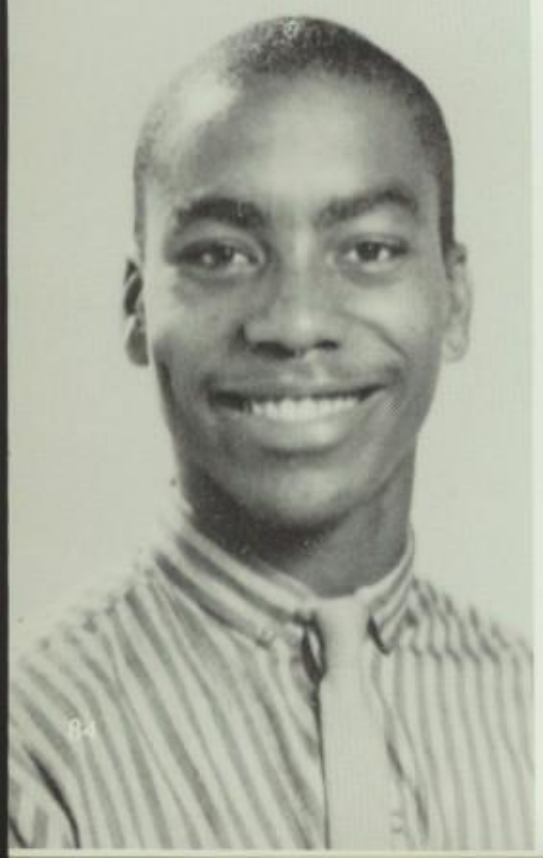
1 Hitting hard, or hardly hitting?
2 Another grueling day at practice.
3 Coach Washburn explains the fundamentals of the game.

While many of the Serra students were at home enjoying a lazy summer, The Varsity Football Team was busy rebuilding the pride that had left the Serra campus over the past two years.

It was during the summer that each member of the team learned what it meant to work together and that to succeed as a team they had to work as a team. The team sweated, laughed and cried together, which made them a true family.

Without this strong foundation of family unity nothing would have been accomplished. Individualism would still exist in the program and the goal of Camino Real League Champions would have been unreachable.

4 Late for practice?! . . . HAVE A NICE DAY!!



Titus Washington was essential in leading the Varsity Cavaliers to its best record in three years. Some might attribute this to the coach who brought the pride back into the school, but it was the players who were on the field playing and they needed a leader; Titus filled this position well. Titus, a good competitor, learned to become unselfish, to play the game and to contribute his 1/11th to the team. His strong arm, coupled with his scrambling ability, will serve him well as a collegiate athlete.

"Discipline is sacrifice, sacrifice, sacrifice sacrifice!!" - Ralph Ellison

Game Time—

The moment of truth

It was game time, the moment of truth, when the Cavaliers rose to the occasion. Performing in front of faculty, family and friends they displayed all they had learned during the grueling summer. It was here, on the battlefield that all the excuses had to be forgotten, and all the practices were to pay off. Everyone was expected to contribute their 1/11th to the team.

"As seniors we just wanted to prove ourselves after two years of disappointment."

And indeed they did, by outscoring their opponents by a combined total score of 218-76 points during the regular season.

Don't let the playful attitude and smiley face of Russell Boone fool you, for on the football field he becomes an awesome force of the team. Russell, a player who really knows the game and enjoys contributing his 1/11th every Friday for the enhancement of the team, is the type of person whom you always want beside you when you had to go up against a big offensive line. He added a lot of spirit into the team and always, even in practice, gave 150% of hmself to the game and those involved. His friendly, caring nature is beneficial to the well being of Serra.

The Game Plan Unfolds

Darryl Jackson, a warm and good natured person, has worked hard for the family this year and had taken pride in contributing his 1/11th to the football team. The "Family" never doubted Darryl as a quarterback though many would have cracked under the pressure. "He accepted the role as the team leader of our offense as a challenge, and responded as any true competitor would."

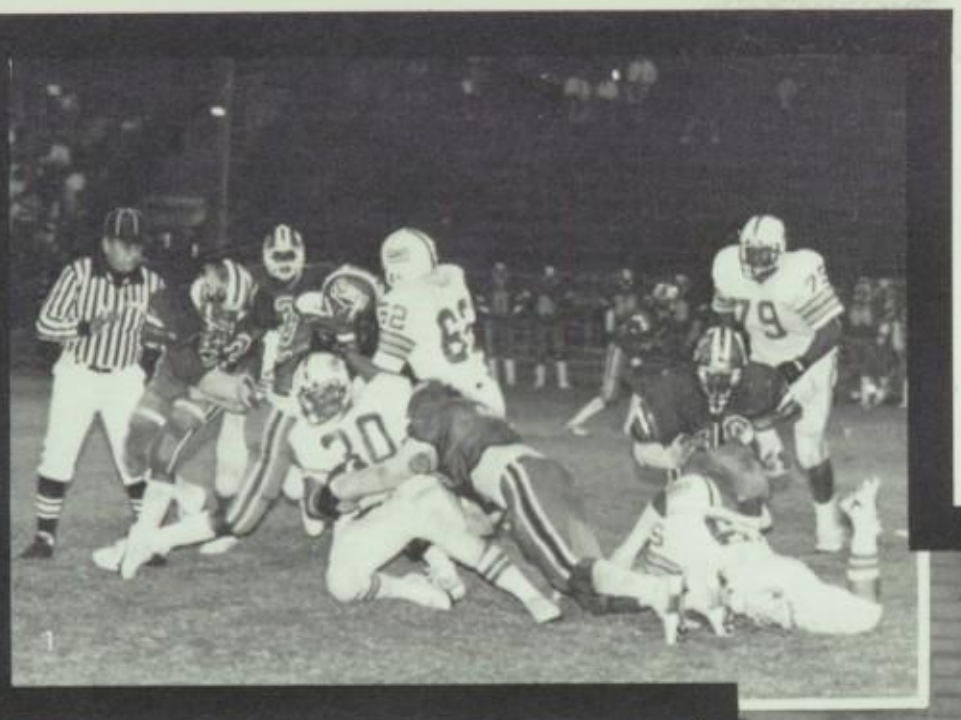
Darryl showed his calmness & poise when forced into the spotlight. He never lost those essential qualities that a quarterback desperately needs.

The Cavaliers took each game one at a time, studying its opponents defensive and offensive sets. As each week brought about new opponents the cavaliers used its diversified defense to match theirs.

For the offense nothing changed. Its game plan was the same every week . . . a balanced offensive attack. No one could ever lable Serra's football team as just passing or just a running team, because, when a defense expected the cavs to run it might be a pass, and when they expected a pass it may have been run.

1 Michael Ward and Kevin Pruitt converge, leaving no place to run.
2 Steven Williams shows what dedication and practice can do.
3 Carl Williams centers his attention on getting the job done.
4 Lined up for battle!!!

4th Quarter- Sustaining The Attack



A key factor to the teams success was due to its diversity. As the defense attacked and dismembered the opponent, the offense in turn ran over remains.

As the defense covered receivers like blankets, stuffed backs like Thanksgiving turkey; the Offense toasted defensive backs like bread and stepped on defensive lines like welcome mats.

Though small in size and number, the Cavaliers were big on heart and intensity. No matter what the scoreboard read, to the Family, the score was always 0-0.

Most of the opponents brought about their own defeat by pre-judging the Cavaliers.

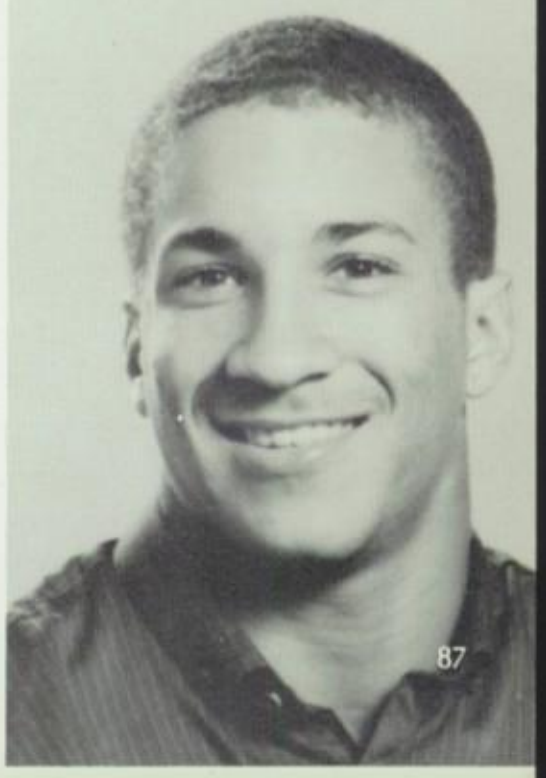
"Man if we don't beat them," said one member of the St. Anthony football team, "we're sorry!"

The Cavaliers proved his assertion ... 48-0.

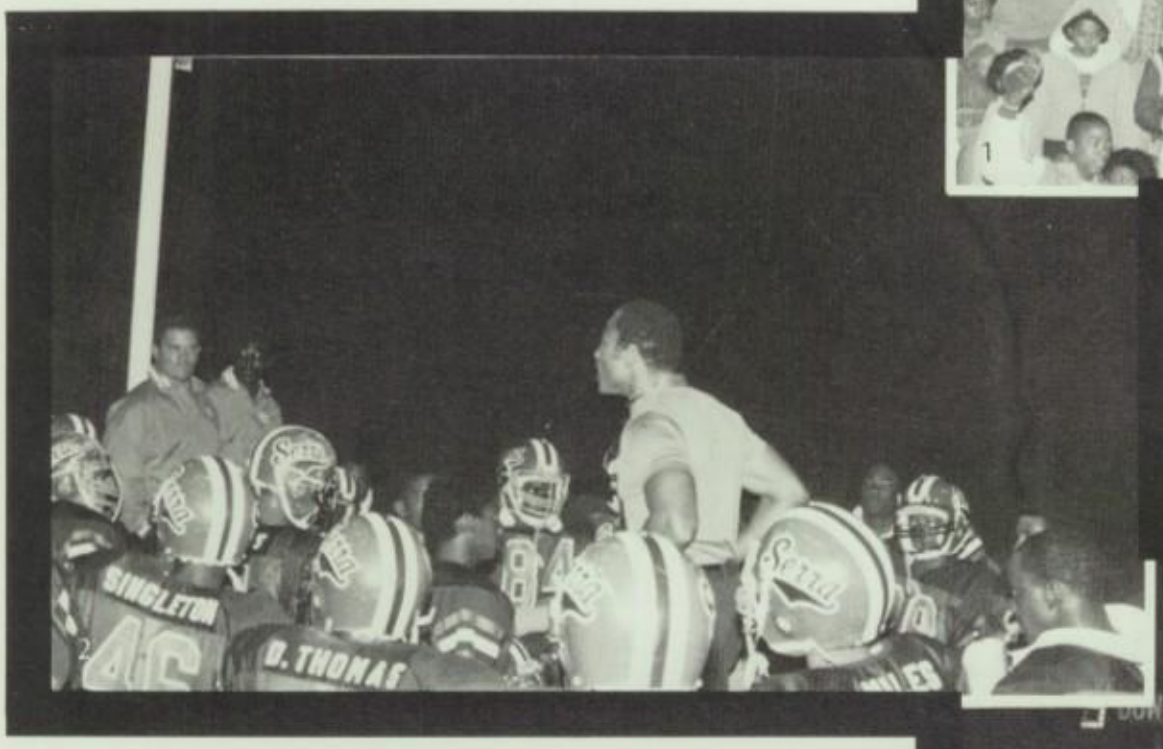
1 Keep the pressure on, Cavaliers.
2 The pilot of the aerial attack that brought down the Eagles.
3 THE WAR ZONE.

Tim Hazure was an agressive football player who made his name well known in the Camino Real League. As a fullback, he never let the opponents forget about the Cavaliers' strong running attack by carring opponents across goal lines.

Anyone who knows Tim would describe him as being agressive, having a big mouth, and an over, over inflated ego along with a raw sense of humor that tends to go overboard. But at the same time this person would say that he has a big heart and much compassion.

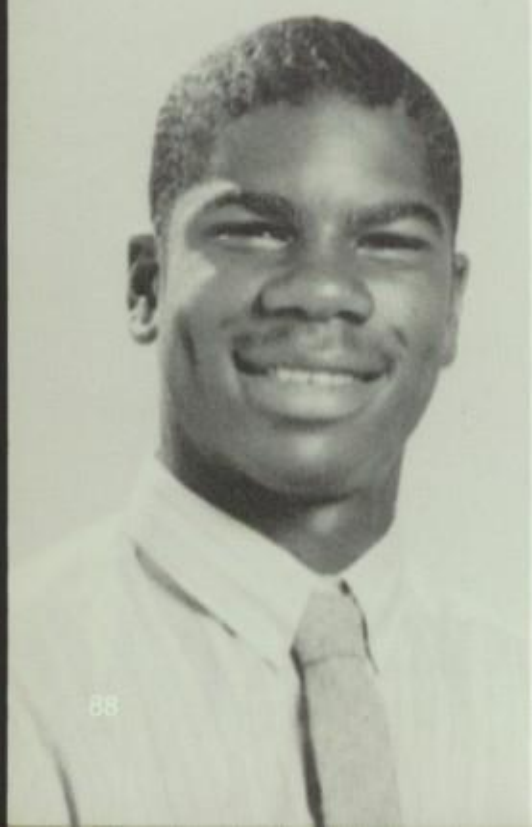


A Family From Start . . .



1 Serra's fans come out to show their appreciation as another victory gets underway.
2 The coach congratulates his team on a job well done.
3 Another game, another victory.
4 The "Family" enters the arena, where the war will being.

The varsity cavaliers started out as a group of individualists who resembled the "cosby kids", running around the field, as if it were a chinese fire drill. The cavaliers was a team full of talent, but no organization. Like a family without a father, but then in stepped the father, in the form of Coach Washburn. He instilled into the cavaliers in three months what couldn't be done in two years. The cavaliers were given family pride and unity. Not only was the pride and unity seen in the football team, but throughout the school as a whole. There wasn't a game when the players couldn't look in the stands and see the family of Serra High School, cheering, clapping, dancing, and rooting on their brothers at each and every victory that they accomplished.



Often times when the younger brother of an outstanding student-athlete comes along, that person fails in comparison. But at Serra, we have the perfect example of a person who not only equals the record of his brothers, but may prove to distinguish himself as preeminent. STEVEN WILLIAMS is the person we are speaking of.

A perfectionist both at practice & during the game, he has proven his dependability as an athlete by never once shirking his responsibility to the team or to himself.

. . . To Finish

Camino Real League Champions

The final victory

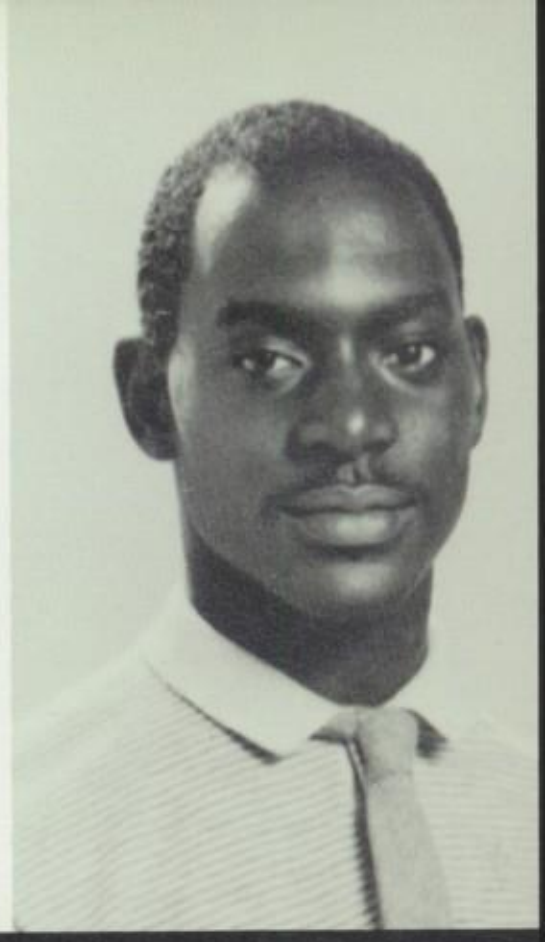
The Varsity Cavaliers started the season with the hope of gaining a league championship, and a new outlook about themselves as a team. This was because of the pride and fundamentals instilled in them by their Coach, Dale Washburn. Coach Washburn both brought to life and shaped the raw talent which apparently existed on the campus of Serra.

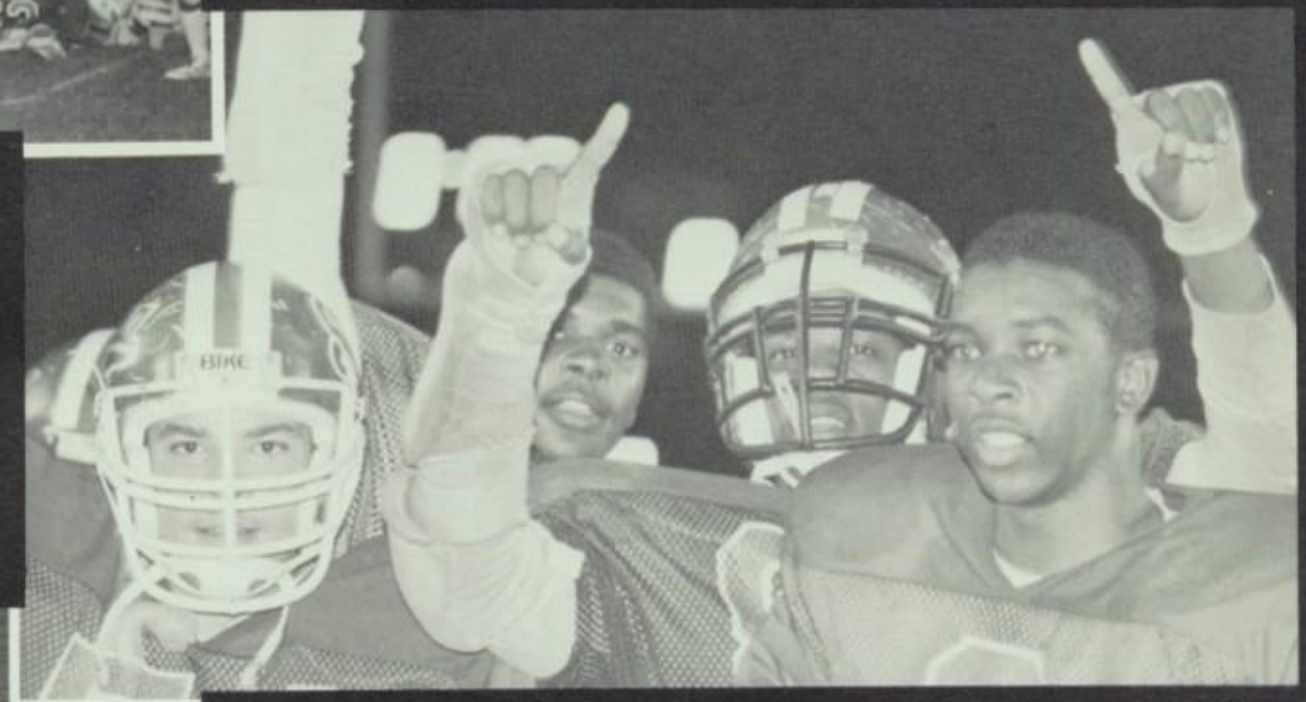
Our football team received a big boost this year from its many loyal fans and supporters who came to the games, signifying that the pride has once more been restored into our team and school.

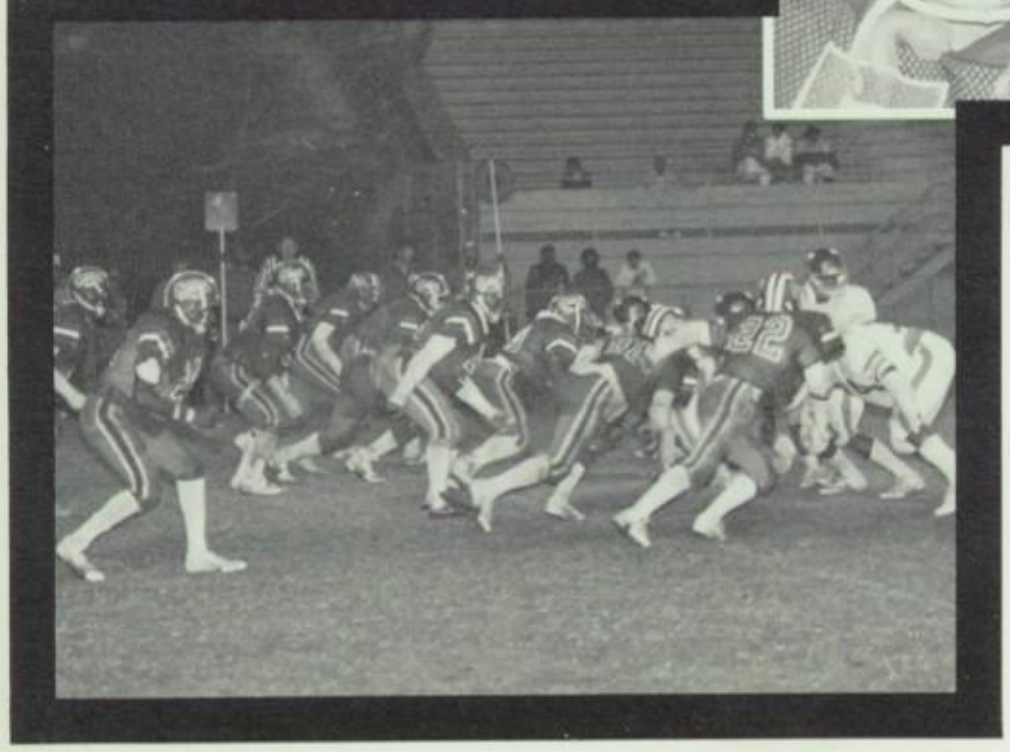
The pride in our team could be seen through the enthusiasm displayed by the fans in the stands. They came to the games in busloads to show their support and love for our team. Not a game went by without the stands being filled with the exuberate yells and cheers of the fans, who patiently waited for the biggest game of the season, our greatest rivalry.

A hard hitting linebacker who played with so much intensity that he was often described as "playing with a loose wire." Affectionately known as "Mr. Com-ton!!" by his fellow teammates, MICHAEL WARD made his presence known on the field by putting quarterbacks on their butts and stopping running backs from coming out of the back field.

Off the field you can always count on Mike to brighten your day with his warm smile and his Morris Day laugh.







The finale came on the ninth night of November on a tensed Friday eve when the Serra Cavaliers' Varsity Football Team faced its biggest challenge of the season. The Cavaliers played their arch-rival brother school, Verbum Dei High. It was a game of high spirits, long awaitance, and much preparation. At the end of regulation time it was us, the Serra High Cavaliers who reigned victorious, bringing back to Serra its first league championship in three years and the prestige we once had.

Varsity Cavaliers '84-'85
"Taking It All The Way"

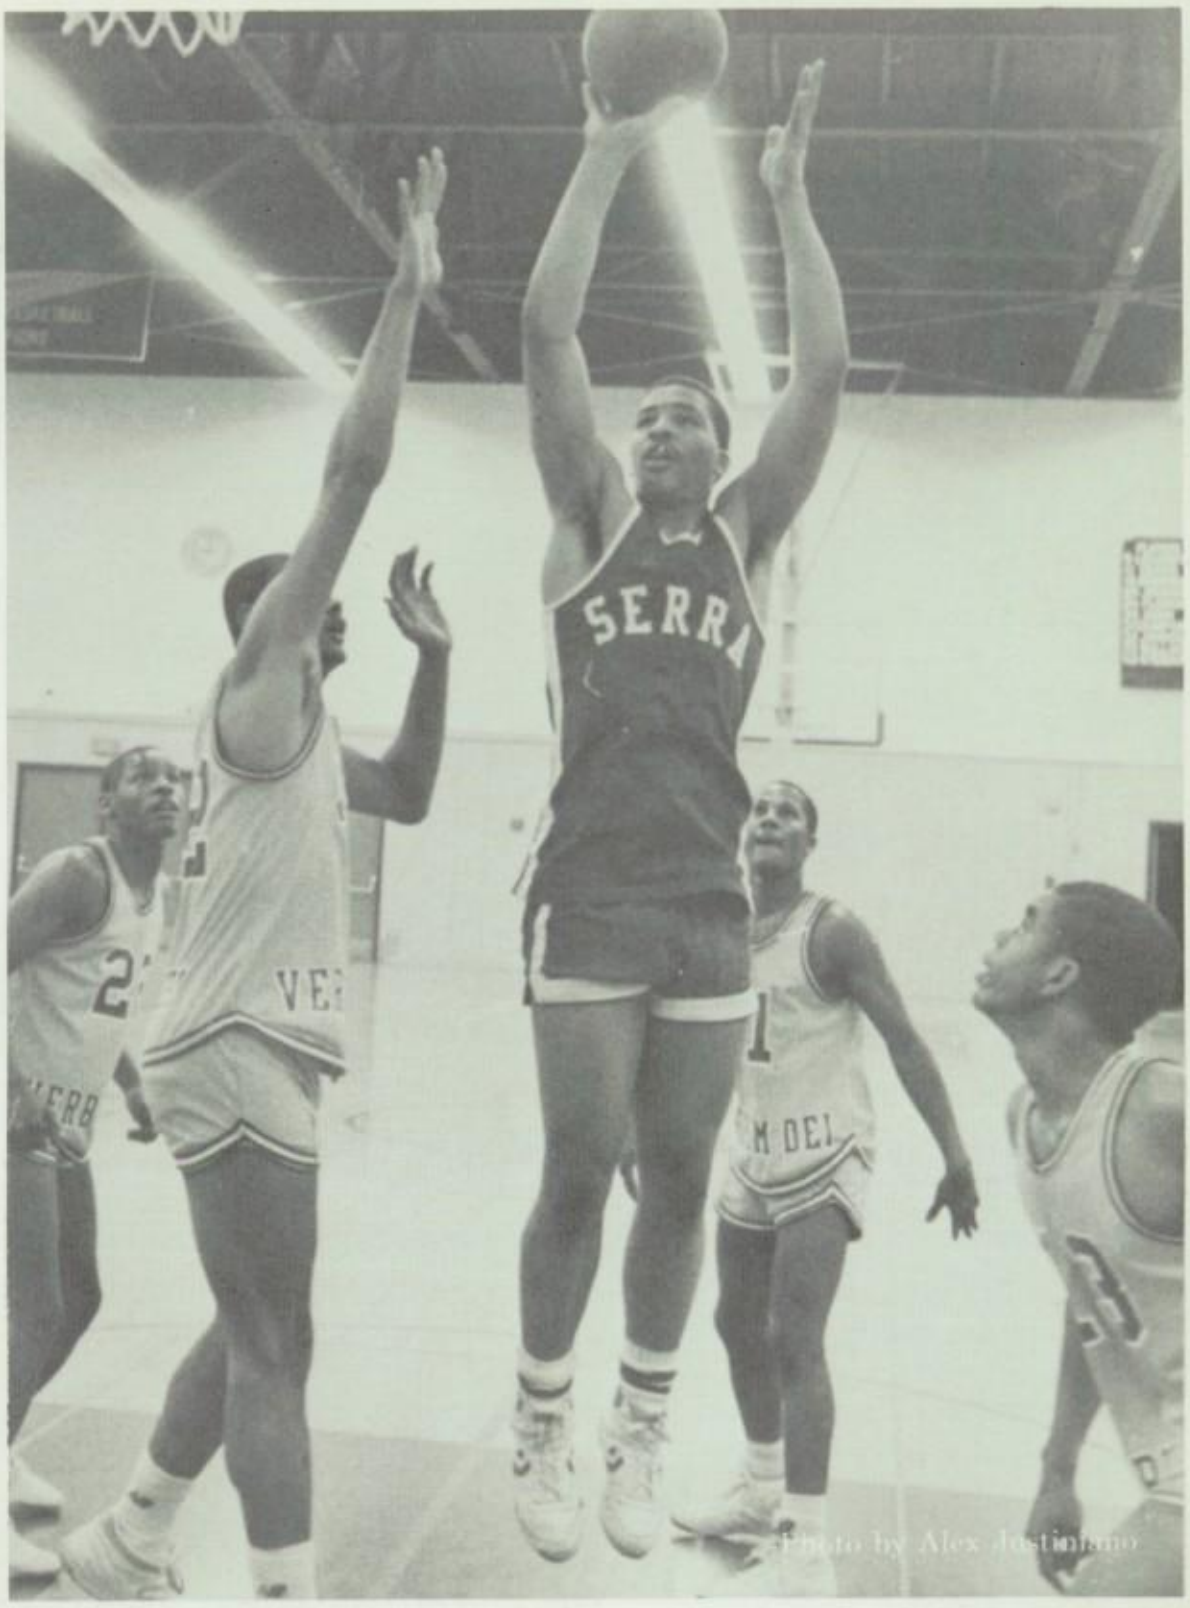
No one can argue with success. Following this train of thought, no one can be upset with the 1984-85 Varsity Basketball Squad. This year, they have provided us with the finest display of discipline, teamwork, and success that has ever been displayed by a varsity squad. Yet, for all of their accomplishments, no one is surprised, least of all the team. From day one, they knew their potential, their strengths, their limits; they knew there was no team they could not defeat when they played as one. The record stands for itself.

But we are not limited in experience; we have tasted defeat. Who among us will ever forget the five-overtime loss to St. Anthony? Yet, these times were few and far between. They brought new wisdom from which the team grew. The outcome of the season was never in doubt: Serra High School, Camino Real League Champions.

This Years Varsity team was: Zarak Cannady, Anthony Fuentes, Glenn Gamble, Greg Geroge, Montel Jordan, Darryl May, Mark Sutherlin, Jimmy Tucker, RodneyWatkins, Stacey Webb, and manager Darrin Barnes.

Greg George shows Cantwell how to make a layup.

When one mentions Zarak Cannady, the first image to come to mind is the twenty-foot jump sht that won the first Verb game at the buzzer, but there is more. Throughout the year, Zarak has given his all in each game, thrilling the crowd with his fantastic moves. Zarak is capable of hitting the fifteen footer and, when denied that, quickly driving to the basket for the easy layup. All of these abilities make "Z-bone" an essential part of the Varsity basketball family.

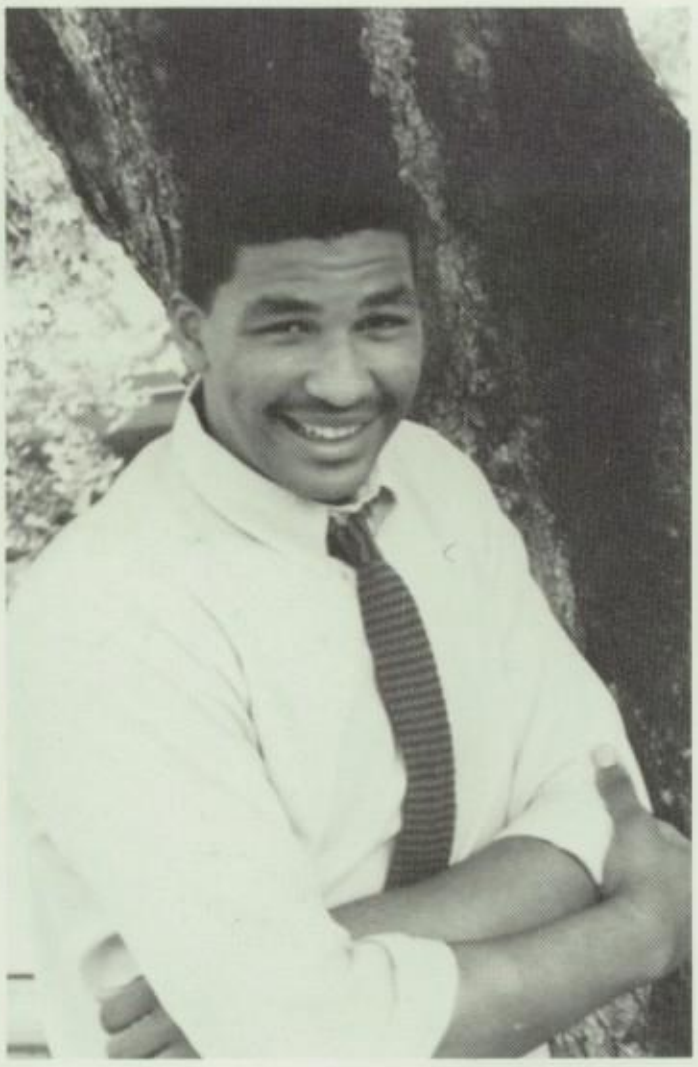


Mark Sutherlin goes up and shoots for two over a stunned Verb defense.

Discipline and Faith. If there are any two words which best describe the Varsity Basketball Squad, they are discipline and faith. Discipline of mind and body, and faith in one's abilities. In how many games have we seen these qualities exhibited? Everyone.

Head Coach George McDaniels and Asst. Coach Jim Masterson are the easons for these attributes. Since day one, they have instilled these values in each team member that they may be able to exhibit them in game time; they do it to perfection.

On the floor, captains Mark Sutherlin and, imparticularly, Darryl May, call the action, but it is Coach McDaniels and Coach Masterson to whom most of the credit must fall. They are the men behind the team.

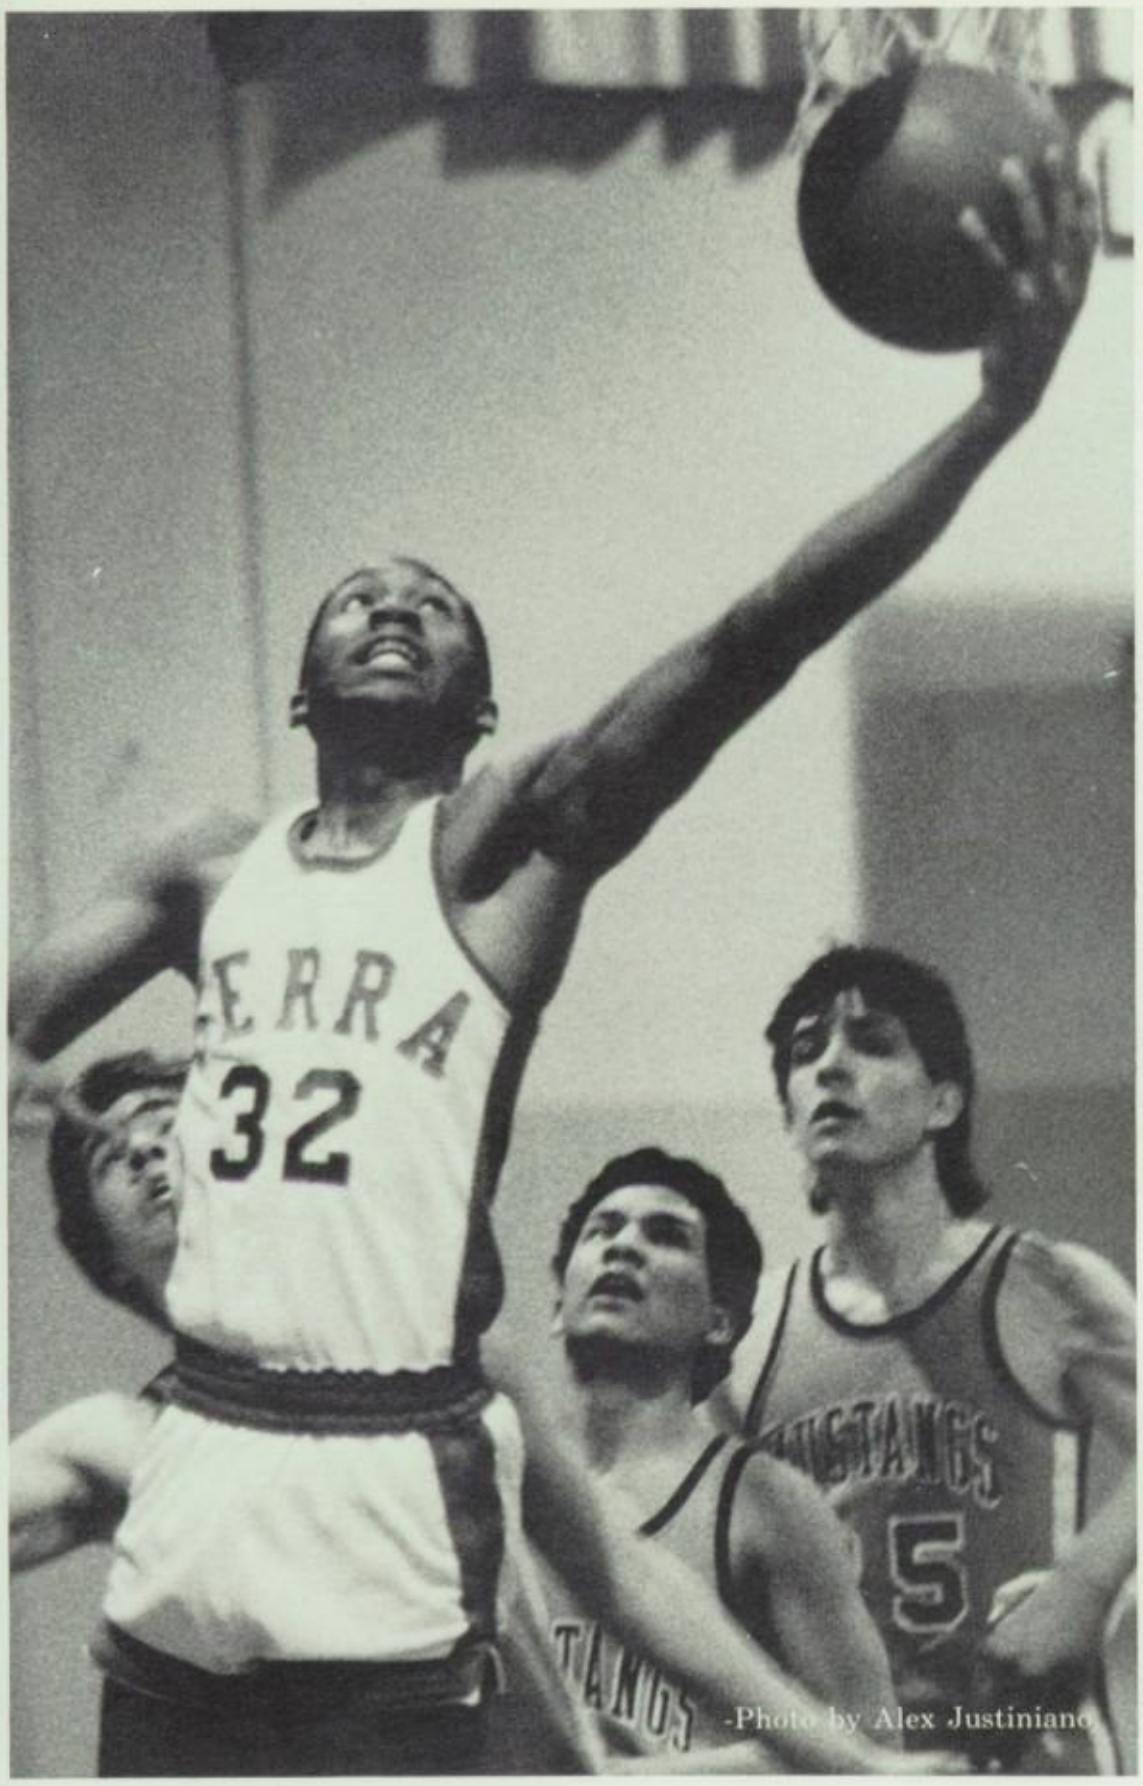


The center position, even at the high school level, is one usually dominated by men of six-foot eight or better; Mark Sutherlin is the exception to the rule. At six-foot five, he's been called the league's most dominating center, a rep that "Sut" has lived up to. Will we ever forget the three dunks in the Verb game, or the chant, "Sut Strut"? Sut has played as one of the family and made us proud.

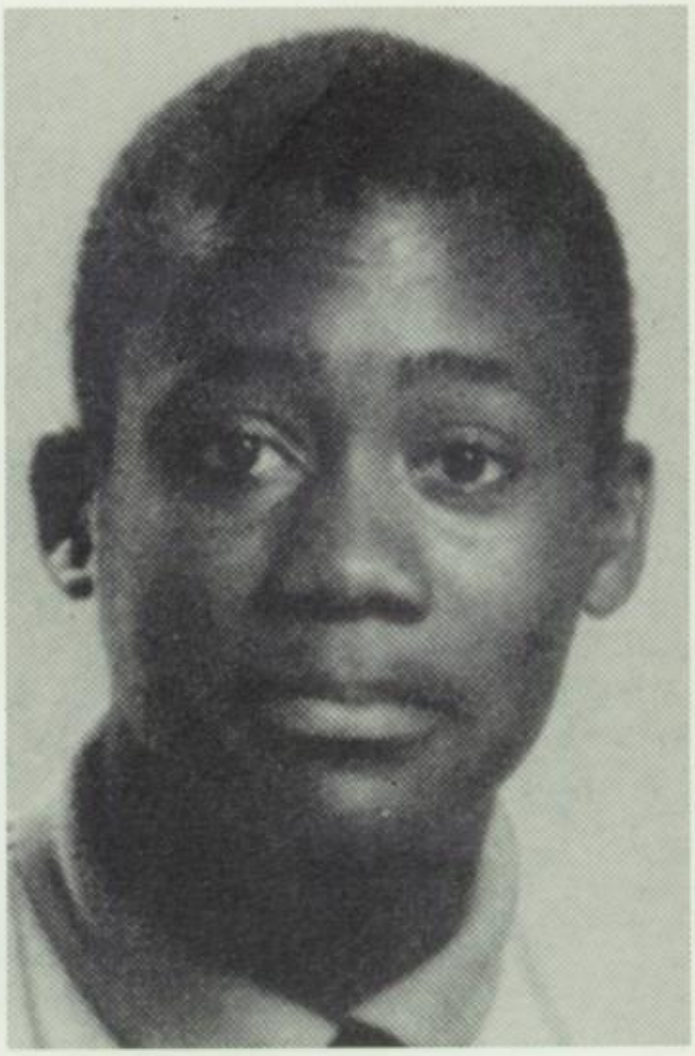
Keith Malone opts to wait for the defense to land before scoring the basketball

Mac feels the joy of victory.

Zarak in deep concentration before sinking the freethrow.



Glenn Gamble makes the reverse layup look easy; for him, it is.

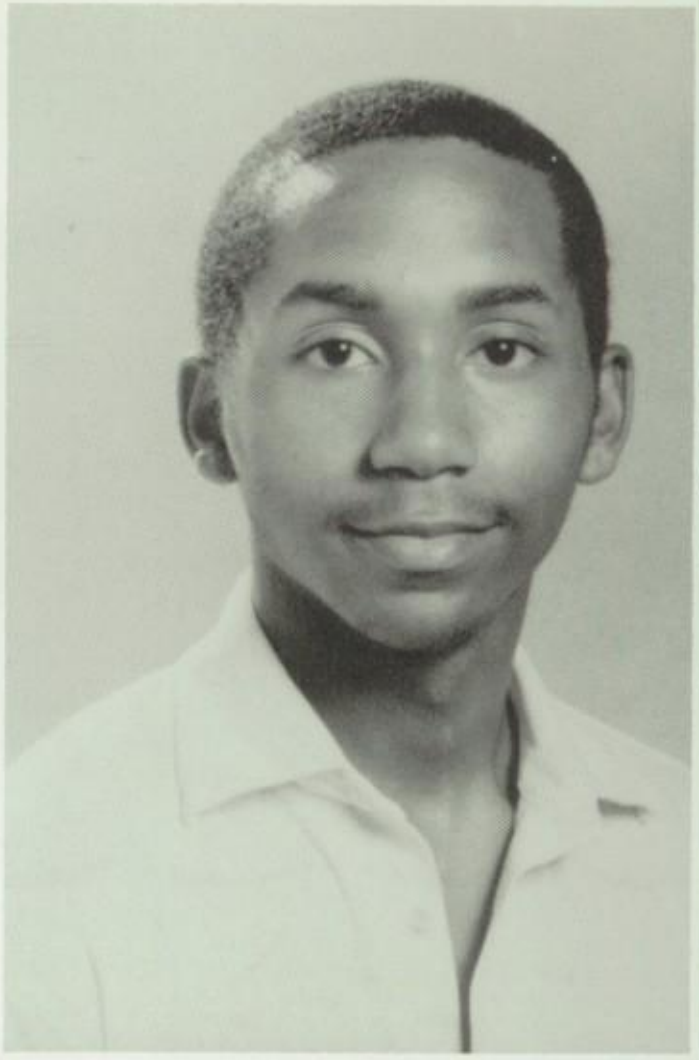


Keith Malone has a style that has been compared to Jamaal Wilkes- while you may not notice it, "Mother" is quite often the highpoint man. Yet, there is more. Keith's defensive skills, too, re quite impressive. He has been called by one newspaper "... the best junior around." Big words to live up to, but action speaks louder than words, and Keith's play on the court proves he's ready to live up to them.

What's Marty doing on the Varsity bench?

A familiar sight; Serra outscores the opponent.

This Viking defender relizes that only way to stop Sut is to foul him.



It is true at Serra that when a substitute enters the game, the level of talent does not diminish at all. One of the main reasons for this fact is the play of Glenn Gamble. Glenn re-writes the image of the sixth man. A smooth player, Gamble is a real threat coming off the bench; he sparks the ball club on everytime he steps on the floor. Glenn has been a true asset like no other.

Well, does it go in or not?

Sut gives us a peak at his freethrow form.

Spirit from the bench exhibited by Montel Jordan and Jimmy Tucker.

D-May takes it in for two over two Verb defenders.

Spirituality is a big part of the team too.

Out Of The Dust: Champions 1985 Serra Varsity Baseball

Standing: Kelvin Boagni, Johnathan Lee, Coach Fleming, Luis Merced, Assistant Coach Trahan, Steven Williams, Jimmy Hazelitt, Jimmy Tucker Kneeling: Timothy Hazure, Sean Richardson, Anthony Fuentes, Leron Duckworth, Angel Burgos Seated: Erikk Aldridge, Ronald Williams, Darrin Whitmore, Jack Baham, Eric Williams

Coach Bob Fleming-The Man Behind The Team

Coach Fleming has joined the ranks of those who share in the rebuilding of Serra- in particular, Serra's baseball program. Coach Fleming is to be credited with nothing less than a total transformation of the baseball program. Coach Fleming literally started from the ground up. The infield took on their proper deminsions, the sprinkler system was moved, hundreds of tons of brickdust was brought in and graded. In addition to the refurbishing improvements, Coach Fleming constructed a new batting cage and a bull pen. Instead of looking like a over-grown sand lot, the baseball field is now considered the best facility in the entire league.

Yet, the renovation of the baseball facilities were merely the groundwork for a far more important task- taking undisciplined, raw talent and turning it into a team that won ball games. Coach Fleming spent endless hours drilling and teaching the players. In all that he did he communicated a genuine belief in his players, building not only skills but a sense of confidence. "I know you can do better than that!" was his constant admonition.

The Winning Combination:

Hitting

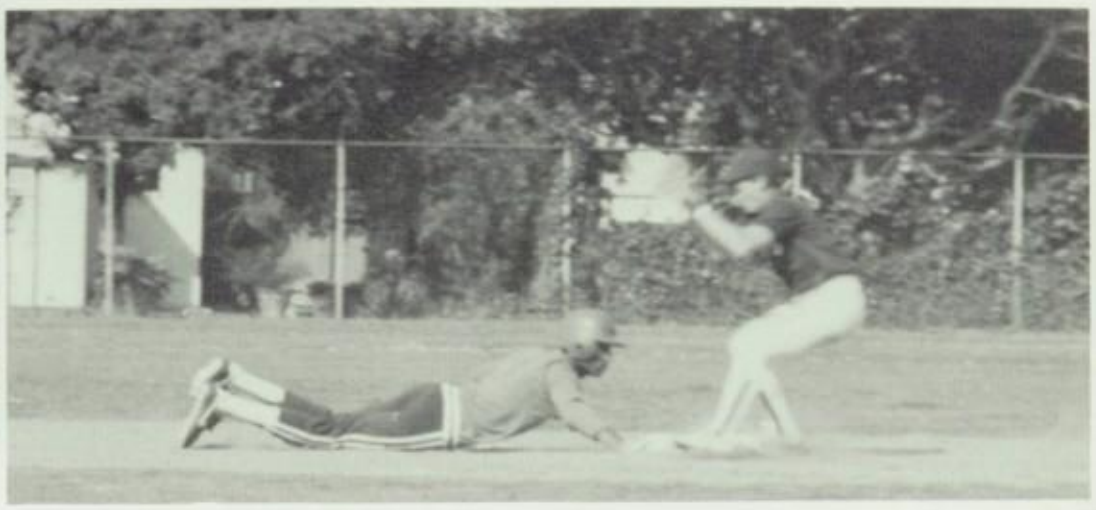
The Offenses job is simple- SCORE. At the top of the batting order are Timothy Hazure, Sean Richardson and Kelvin Boagni. They come to the plate with the responsibility of bring players home.

Sean Richardson waiting for "his" pitch.

Mean Timothy Hazure.

Erikk Aldridge on the prowl.

Jimmy Hazelitt rounds first.



Boagni hugging second.

Sean Richardson scores.

Aldridge weighs the odds.

Pitching:

More games are won or lost at the pitcher's mound than anywhere else on the field. When the pitcher is "On" the preasure is off of the fielders. When the pitcher is "Off" the fielders work overtime. Pitchers Kelvin Boagni, Ronald Williams and Darrin Whitmore were "On" a good majority of the time, weathering the presures of the pitchers mound with professional form.

Delivery.

Taking aim.

The windup.

A pitch is conceived.

Fielding:

A "No hitter" is a rare occurance in baseball. The odds are that even with excellent pitching an opponent will periodically make contact, and when the ball cracks off the bat and heads for the fence the game is literally in the fielders hands.

Aldridge fields a pop fly.

Richardson concentrates.

Nabbed.

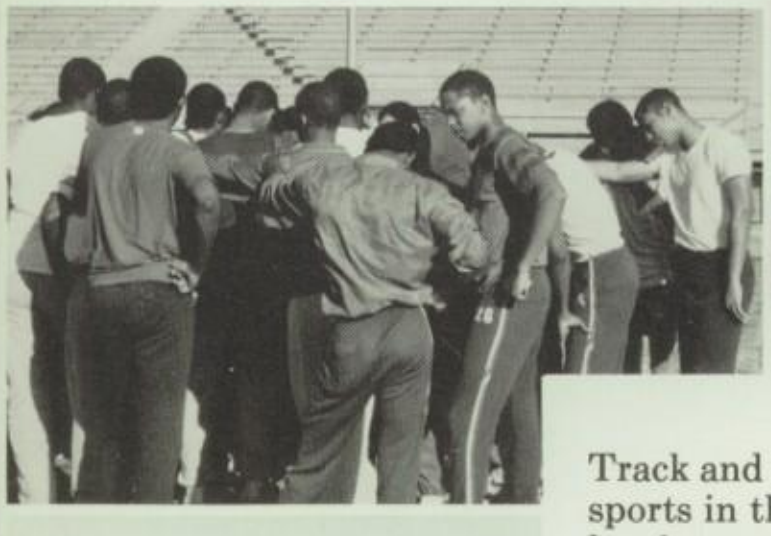
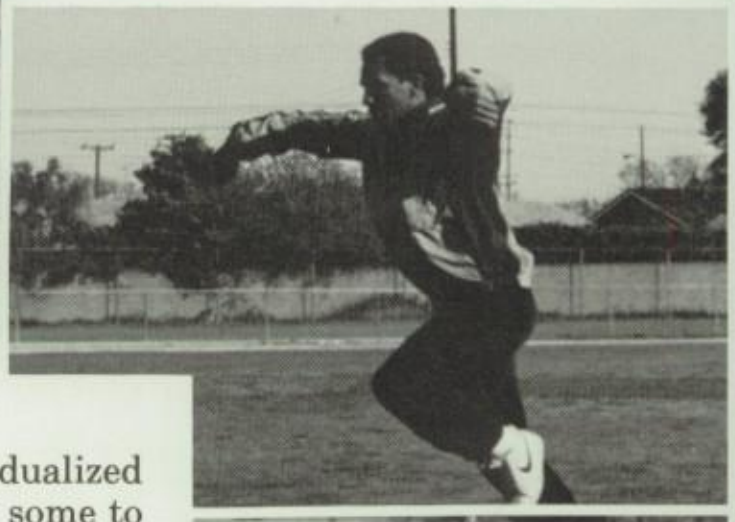
Baseball . . . A Reflection

Baseball is the American sport. Even football, with it's multi-million dollar contracts and it's hyped up Super Bowl must take a back seat to baseball. What renders baseball such a uniquelly American sport? Perhaps it is because, unlike so many other sports, baseball is a game that most people are physically ablt to participate in. Unlike football, which requires great speed or strength, unlike basketball that requires extraordinary height and skill, or golf and tennis that seem to require a background of being reared in country clubs, baseball is a game that is open to the likes of Fernando Valenzuela- a poor, over-weight, immigrant. One does not have to stretch the immagination to picture oneself out on a baseball field before thousands of cheering fans. As well, baseball is unique in it's combination of a collective effort and the individual effort. Whereas a running back on a football team is dependent upon the linemen doing their job, the baseball player strikes a much more solitary pose- the pitcher faces the batter alone; the shortstop is solely responsible for fielding balls hit to him; the batter at the plate stands alone against the opposing team.

Americans have always cherished their self-held view that they are rugged individualists- the lone settler crossing the prarie, the isolated immigrant heritage, and few have the opportunity to travel into space, the solitary stand remains embedded into our psyche. As well, whereas in life such stands often end tragically, not so for the solitary baseball player. By design, every game produces a winner, and so each game affirms for each individual fan that he still can prevail over the array of opponents pitted against him. Baseball if the American sport because it captures the essense of what Americans want to believe about themselves.

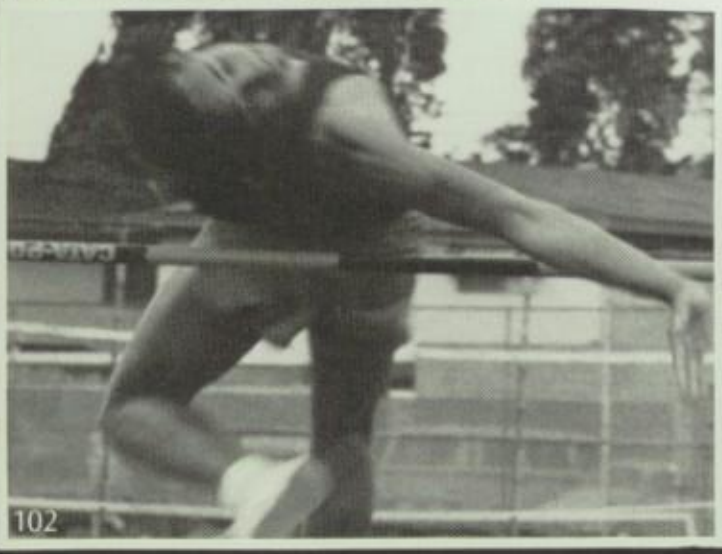
Track & Field





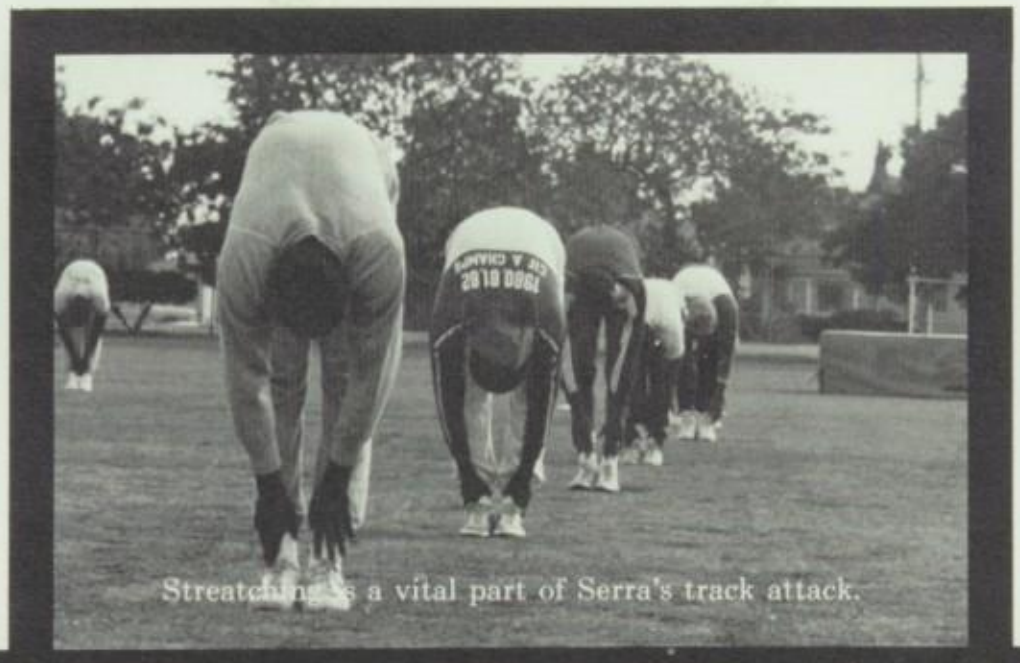
Track and Field, one of the most individualized sports in the world. It is considered by some to be the sport of champions, where one man is pitted against another and time itself. No balls, no bats, no hoops, just mans strength, desires and self determination. In no other sport can one feel the excitement in crossing the tape to victory.

A track athelete knows that he cannot only rely on his teammates and that he must possess the desire to become better and that this desire will make him a "winner." In track you cannot blame the quarterback the point guard or the pitcher, there is only you, the runner. As his body feels as if it is falling apart and it all seems hopless, he must keep his form, he must push the pain aside. For there are no half-times or any time outs. The moment of truth occurs when he and his opponent are neck and neck, he must catch his second wind and go for "a piece of the rock", "hardware", the gold!! The satisfaction comes when you know, deep in your heart, that you have competed and beaten the best!!!

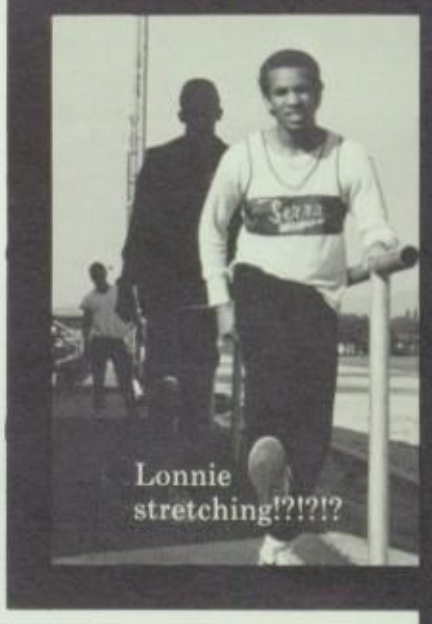


"We're Coming Back"

Another easy day at practice for Shane and Hawk.



Streatching is a vital part of Serra's track attack.



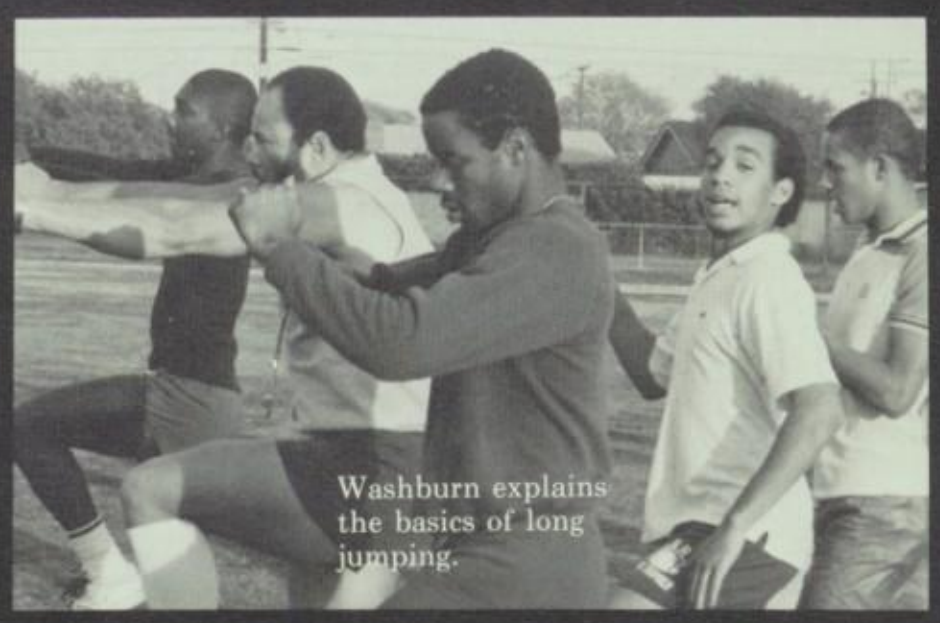
Lonnie stretching!?!?!?

This year was a year of rebuilding for the cavalier track team. New sweats and uniforms were purchased and "farmer Dale" could be seen leveling the track with a tractor. With this new look that Dale Washburn brought to the track team he also brought back the winning image that the track team had seemed to have lost during the last season. The talent was there, but the coach wasn't.

We're coming back is the there for the '85 cavalier track team. It can be easily seen at the practices where the Cavs learned the basic fundamentals of form running, something that Serra's track program had seemed to have forgotten last season. Under the head coach Jim Wetmore, pride and dedication was as easy to come by as a three dollar bill.

Derek Knight affectionately known as "Dinky D.A.K", is a vital part of the Cavalier Track program, since his joining the team as a freshman. Derek displayed his versatility by starting off as being a distance runner, then finding himself a home in both hurdling events.

Not only is "Dinky D.A.K." an athlete but a student. If there was one word to describe him it would be, "Intensity." He attacks his books just as he attacks the 120 high hurdles. His leadership qualities extend beyond the track. He is an active member of Serra Student Body Government, and also on the Honor Roll.



Washburn explains the basics of long jumping.

Farmer Dale levels the track with his handy dandy tractor. (He should level his hair style!)

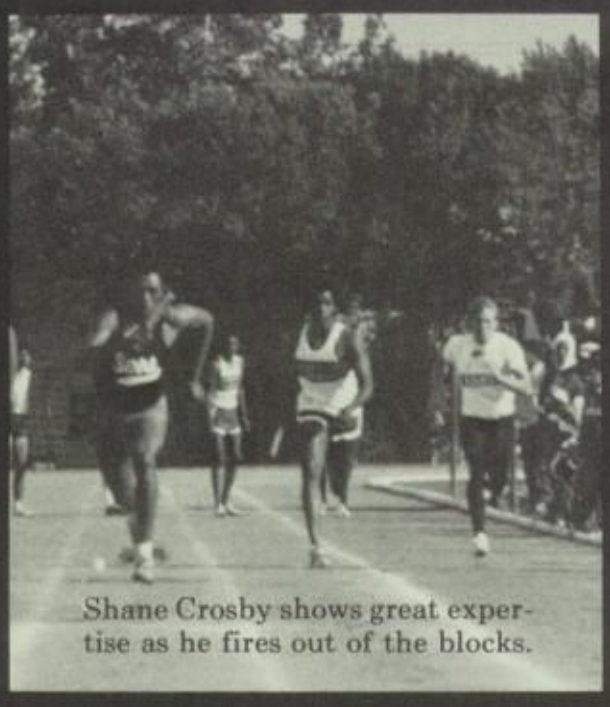
Form Running . . .
What Is It? . . .



Shane Crosby shows great expertise as he fires out of the blocks.

Form running is the basis of the modern runner, the combination of speed and concentration. Form running consist of six major phases. This was the base of the cavalier track attack. The track team would beat their opponent with talent for the first part of the race and then turn to form running to bring it home.

Here are the phases of form running.

Posture, in order for an athlete to have good form he must first have good posture, this doesn't mean he has to have a straight back, but he is to run with a slight lean forward.

Phase two of form running which is foreleg reach is the lifting of ones knees and the kicking out of the lower leg. This is a very important part of a good runner accompanied with speed and posture. Foreleg reach is an essential part of good form.

Phase three is coordination of arms with legs because without it no one can run. In running, the arms must be driven back as far as they can in order to get full extension of the legs as they resemble pistons.

The forth phase of form running is acceleration which is an important part of running. Acceleration might sound easy but it is not because it calls for the concentration of keeping the arms form going into different directions and maintaining a constant speed.

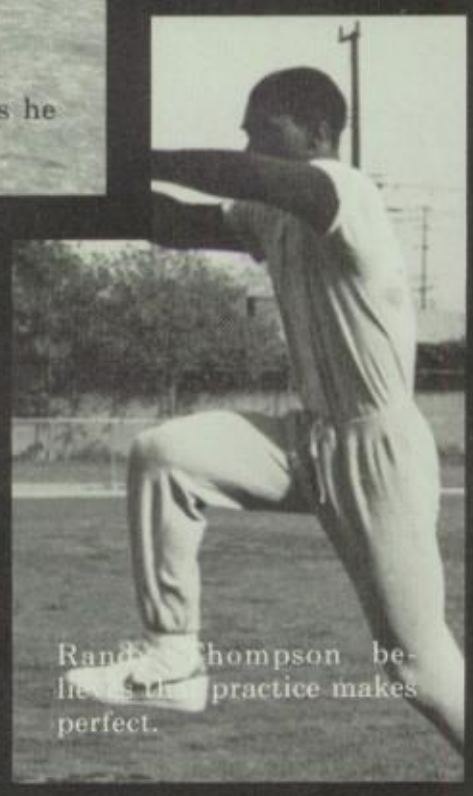
The fifth phase of form running is the finish. Most people think the finish is just crossing the finish line, wrong. In a race the finish is the leaning at the tape, and maintaining composure until the end of the race. The last and most important phase is relaxation. Relaxation is the most important phase in form running, because it is hard for any one to run it they are uncomfortable or not relaxed.

Sherston Sanz shows his form???? (Ha!Ha.)

Derek Knight shows true form and determination!!!

Michael Jules ... perfects ... form in the ... mp.

Keith Moore shows great ... ness as he clears a mere three feet.

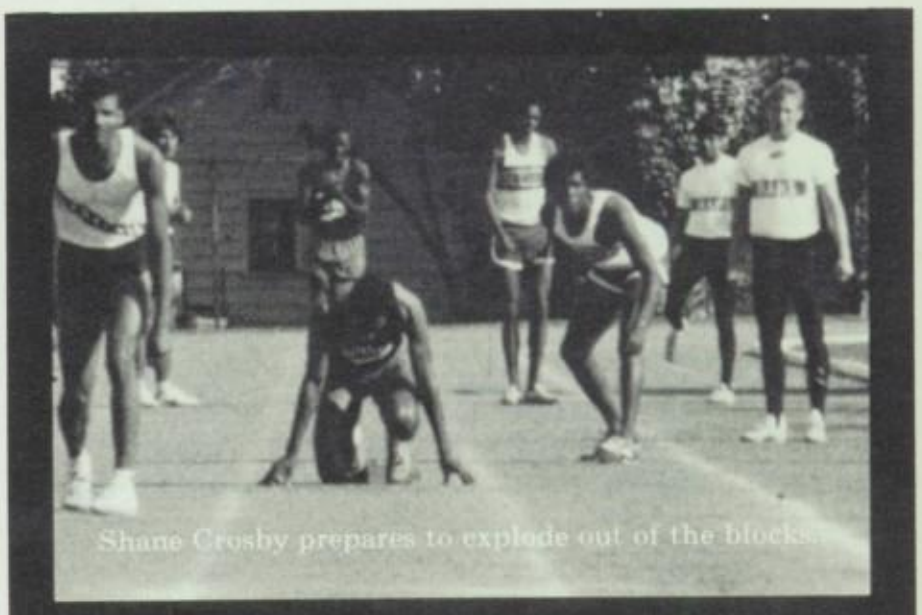


Rand... Thompson be... lie... practice makes perfect.

A... Duncan expresses the true art of form.

In The Blocks . . .

Bennie Thomas, the "B.T. Express", is a track athlete with a quiet nature that seems to explode once his feet touches the track and propels him across the finish line. Bennie is an athlete that doesn't brag about his abilities but rather he lets his abilities speak for themselves, which makes him one of the outstanding members of the track team. His quickness and long strides makes him a lethal weapon to all of his opponents. As a junior Bennie displayed his outstanding abilities in track and field and as a senior it is clear to see that his abilities have only become better if that is possible. Bennie is a credit to the sport and an inspiration to all.



Shane Crosby prepares to explode out of the blocks.

Darrin Barnes displaying a stretch before going to the blocks.

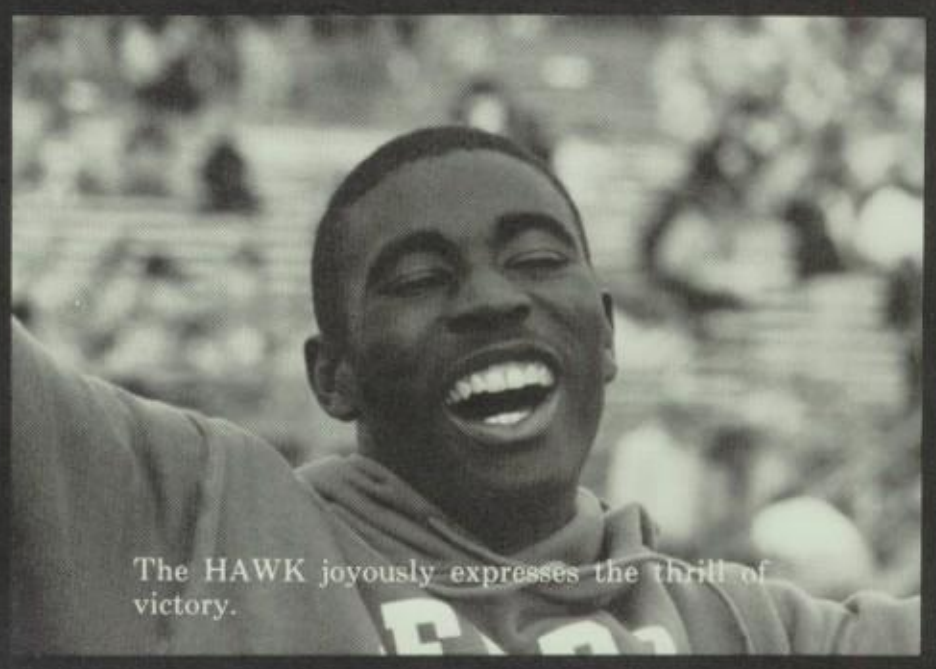
The moment of truth is here and the product of your hard, long ordeal of practice shall be displayed. There is no time to reflect on any mistakes, problems or other distractions, all doubts must be set aside and the basic fundamentals of track and field must be applied. The runner takes his mark and as the butterflies are churning in your stomach, full concentration is required. When set, the butterflies seem to fly away because nothing else matters except your commitment to the goal of winning, the purpose of a week of dedicated practice. Then the gun sounds. This is where the outcome of many races is decided, where the tention can make or break a runner in his given event. A simple misjudgement of the gun, also known as a "false start", can be seen as a week of practice wasted, and results in a runner having to watch his race rather than participate in it. Therefore discipline must be stressed, especially while in the blocks.

Bringing It Home

The Finish

Bringing it home - the finish, this is it, the moment of truth, "its time." This is the point of the race in which the runner must either put up or shut up. Where he must call upon all of his strength and talent and apply them so he strides toward his goal, the tape the finish line.

Where in the beginning of the race, speed is a nescessity, but here form is most important; for without good form the race can be lost. It is in the last few yards of the race where the runner has hit the brick wall, (SHHMACK) he has a 300 pound monkey on his back, and every muscle in his body is tense. The brain clickes . . . "form" everything seems to come together. Fatigue turns into determination and the finish can be seen, the final step to victory.



The HAWK joyously expresses the thrill of victory.

What happened t[o] re[la]- ation, Gary?

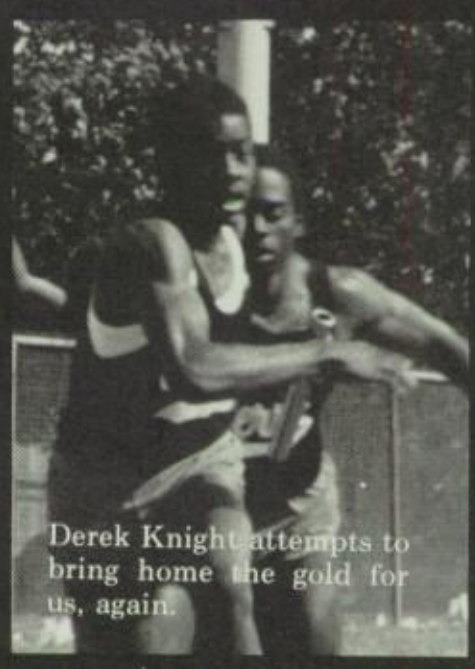
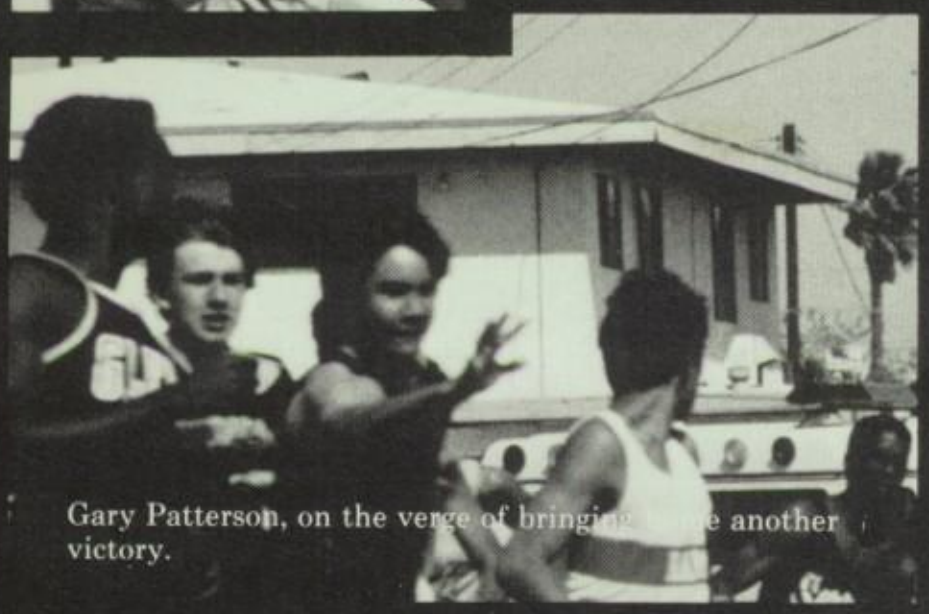
Roderick Williams shows his determination in a relay.



Derek Knight attempts to bring home the gold for us, again.



Gary Patterson, on the verge of bringing [h]ome another victory.

Lonnie Phillips or simply "Phalps" to those who know him is a quiet but important figure on the track team. A true competitor who makes his pressence known whenever he steps on any track. But his many achievements during his three years of track can only be matched by his warm personality that he displays on and off the track. He mixes warmth with what some might a "ruthless" sense of humor that makes Lonnie Phillips a unique athlete and an asset to any sport that he participates in. He is a symbol of what it means to be a track athlete in every sense of the word.

High Jump specialist, Mike Jules, displays his form.

Action From The Stands

Have you ever sat and felt helpless as you watched a sporting event? Well, this feeling was not one popular at Serra this year. This year, the students in the stands were not content to merely sit back and lie dormant. No, they chose to participate, to let the team know that they were there and that they were pulling for them. Thus came the birth of the Loud Crowd. Do not take them lightly; the team has said that on many an occasion, the crowd truly helped them pull it out.

The memories of the Loud Crowd will last for a long time. The newspaper, the wave, the chant "Come on, Serra, come on!" For all of us who took part in these acts, it felt good to be able to help the team, to know that though you cannot be on the court, you do make a difference.

Just a few of the original "Noise Boys" include: Keith Brooks, Shawn Boykin, Shane Crosby, Anthony Davis, Lonnie Phillips, Derek Honoré, Erikk Aldridge and Bobby Eason.
